ARMY PLOT LINKED TO HESS

(Copyright, 1941, By International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 14 (INS)—Otto Strasser, leader-in-exile of the anti-Nazi "Black Front," members of which are still secretly active in Germany, linked the spectacular flight of Rudolf Hess to Scotland with underground reports he said he had received of an impending military coup d'etat to overthrow Hitler.

Reached by International News Service in Montreal over the long distance telephone, Strasser said he had received "definite information" from Germany some weeks ago that "the army high command is fed up with Hitler" and that "a famous German general has already been designated to succeed him as military dictator."

Strasser, one of the original founders of the Nazi party who fled for his life in 1934 after his brother, Gregor Strasser, another pioneer in the Nazi movement, was killed in Hitler's 1934 "blood purge," said:

"Hess must have learned of this impending putsch to throw the Nazi regime out of power and this may explain his precipitate flight to Britain. He knew the army chieftains hate him just as they hate Hitler and Himmler and most of the

Hess' Errand May Be to Fool Britain, Says Norse

BUTTE, Mont., May 14 (AP)—Rudolf Hess may have been sent from Germany to fool England," says Carl J. Hambro, one time president of the Norwegian Parliament and of the League of Nations assembly.

It isn't reasonable to suppose, Hambro said in a speech last night, that Hess deserted Chancellor Hitler.

"It is of course impossible to know exactly what the game is," he said, but Hess "may be a fanatic willing to sacrifice even his own life if it could help bring about the downfall of England."

BEFORE HESS FLED—All seemed serene in the German State Opera House six years ago when the biggest brainmen of the Nazi regime gathered to attend a performance. It may be noticed that at the time Rudolf Hess (1) sat in the same box with Hitler (2) while Goering (3) sat in another. Today Hess is in Britain after his sensational escape. Pictured are (l. to r.) Goering, Frau Goering, Hess, Frau Goebbels, Hitler, Frau Hess, Goebbels and Army Minister von Blomberg.

Vichy Approves Hitler-Darlan Terms in Move Aimed at U. S.

VICHY, France, May 14 (AP)—The French government unanimously approved today terms negotiated between Adolf Hitler and French Vice-Premier Jean Darlan, presenting the United States with what diplomatic circles called the "accomplished fact of European co-operation designed to halt American entry into the war.

There still was no official indication of what the terms involved, but a communique, issued after the cabinet meeting, said "the effects of these negotiations will be felt soon."

This, apparently, was the outcome of a four-hour meeting at Berchtesgaden between the Nazi Fuehrer and the French admiral-statesman who is his government's foreign minister.

Their talk was said to have been cordial and Darlan was said to have been accorded full military honors. When they talked has not been divulged.

Diplomatic terms were agreed generally the circles included not only economic but political collaboration as well between the French and their German conquerors.

Revelations of Hess Will Make Nazis 'Sweat', British Say

LONDON, May 14 (AP)—Rudolf Hess is talking and writing "words which will make the German high command sweat," the British Broadcasting Corp. declared today as it hit its stride in a propaganda campaign against Germany to capitalize on the flight of the No. 3 Nazi.

While the government-controlled BBC started on a schedule of 10 broadcasts a day to Germany on the Hess affair, a meeting between Adolf Hitler's deputy and Prime Minister Churchill was projected—a move which Britons hoped would result in disclosure of vital German military secrets.

For the second successive day an authoritative British source stressed that Hitler's erstwhile deputy and minister without portfolio was writing and reading.

(A fair assumption was that he was preparing, in some form or other, a treatise on the reasons for his flight.)

Hess, it also appeared, was listening to BBC's handling of his case, for an authoritative source said he spent some time at his secret sanctuary listening to radio news bulletin. Hess is fluent in English.

WANTED PACE THIS YEAR

Some London sources, casting aside German reflections on the mental state of the unexpected prisoner, declared Hess must have had a clear view of policy which he believed would help the German people and tried to persuade Hitler to adopt it.

"Only when he saw there was no hope of this did he adopt the desperate expedient of flight," they added.

But on one point these British quarters and the Germans agreed: That if Hess thought peace could be arranged between Britain and Germany short of a military solution the Fuehrer's ex-deputy was under an "illusion." "The Germans called it 'hallucination'."

Britons said Hess was convinced the war must be ended this year if the interests of the German people were to be served. He said peace in 1941 had been Hess' objective, recalling his New Year's Day broadcast predicting peace this year.

"What made him change his mind in five months?" The Brit-

NAZI ALIBI FOR HESS FLIGHT IN FULL CRY OVER AIR

NEW YORK, May 14 (AP)—The German radio, firing a salvo in the "Battle of Propaganda" on the Hess case, made the following broadcast today:

"The real motives of the flight of Rudolf Hess to Scotland are revealed in documents left behind him, the contents of which were communicated to the press Wednesday noon.

"Hess embarked on the flight with the intention of proceeding to the estate of the Duke of Hamilton and Brandon in Lanarkshire and, as a matter of fact, he landed in the vicinity of the estate.

"Hess had made the acquaintance of the duke at the Olympic games in Berlin in 1936 and believed that the duke belonged to a British group in opposition to (Prime Minister) Churchill as representative of a clique of warmongers. Hess further believed that the duke possessed sufficient influence to be able to wage an effective fight against the Churchill clique.

TWO NORDIC PEOPLES

"From letters left behind him and other documents, it is clear that Hess by his personal intervention hoped to enable the whole truth to become known as it existed according to his conviction. The object of his journey to Great Britain was to explain to those circles which he considered accessible to reasonable arguments the real position of England and also the position of Germany.

"Rudolf Hess viewed the German-British struggle as a struggle between the two great Nordic peoples which, if it was continued long, could have only one outcome, according to his conviction: the complete destruction of Great Britain.

ANGLO-NAZI ACCORD

"Rudolf Hess therefore flew to Britain in order to explain to circles with whom he hoped to get in touch the in-the-long-run fully hopeless situation of Great Britain and to show them the un-assailably strong position of Germany.

"He believed it to be possible to induce, by his personal intervention, those circles in Great Britain who are prepared to make peace to enlighten the British public still more on the true position of Britain and thus to prepare perhaps after all soil for German-British understanding.

"Rudolf Hess under no circumstances had the intention of getting in touch with Winston Churchill. On the contrary, he wanted to address himself to the inner political opposition against Churchill, as becomes unmistakably evident from his notes which have been found.

"Rudolf Hess had indeed the absurd idea that he could return to Germany again after a short while when he had fulfilled his mission of rapprochement.

"The idea to flee from Germany never came to him for a moment. In that case, he naturally could have rather gone to some other country, such as Switzerland, and have taken his family with him, whereas his family, as already reported, has remained in Germany.

"Rudolf Hess, in his idea fixe, was well-nigh one hundred per cent certain of success, as becomes evident from his notes."

BROMFIELD ST. STAMP DEALER BOUND, ROBBED

Two armed robbers today gagged a Bromfield st., stamp dealer, handcuffed him to a chair and a safe, bound his feet, stunned him with a revolver butt, then took $50 from his pocket, and from the safe took some change and a quantity of valuable stamps.

For two hours, Russell C. Wood, 45, of Gloucester st., Arlington, the philatelist, struggled to free himself and finally managed to loosen strips of adhesive across his mouth. Then his cries from the back room of his sixth-floor office attracted John Leahy of Dorchester and Fred Lebourveau of West Roxbury, who were talking in the corridor with Dr. Merton C. Richmond, an optometrist who just examined their eyes.

Leahy and Lebourveau traced the muffled calls to Wood's office and called police.

With arrival of cruiser cars, Bromfield st. was soon jammed with hundreds of curious, the crowd growing as the officers remained upstairs in the building.

The stamp dealer told police that two men, both awarthy, came into his front office from the corridor an hour before noon, and when he emerged from the back room they both pointed revolvers at him and forced him to return.

Then they gagged him, handcuffed and tied him, stunned him with a blow from a revolver butt, completed their robbery and departed.

Police sawed him loose from the chair and safe but the loops around his wrists remained and officers were dispatched for a locksmith.

Selectee Likes Camp, Wishes Draft Board Was There

CAMP BLANDING, Fla., May 14 (AP)—A young selectee mailed a postcard to the members of his selective service board. It read: "Having a wonderful time. Wish I had you here."

SOMERVILLE ALDERMAN IN TOILS AGAIN

For the second time in less than 60 hours, President Walter J. Moran of the Somerville Board of Aldermen, a State Representative, was arrested today on a drunkenness charge, this time in East Cambridge.

Patrolman John F. Linehan made the arrest at 2 a. m., it was disclosed in East Cambridge court, after Moran had allegedly alighted from a taxicab in Cambridge st. and attempted to get into the East Cambridge Athletic Club, closed an hour earlier.

The policeman said he went over and explained the fact to Moran, but was met with a torrent of abusive language, during which the alderman insisted that he, Moran, had been responsible for Cambridge police getting a day off in six.

According to the officer, the abusive language continued, despite his remonstrations, and he finally arrested Moran.

In court, Moran sat in the dock with five others, some shaking but not with any outward signs of happiness.

His counsel, Rep. Michael Neville of Cambridge, had a conference with Judge Arthur P. Stone and Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy, during which Neville suggested that the best ending to the case would be for him to take Moran home.

This was agreed to and the charge was filed.

Sunday, Moran was arrested in his own city after allegedly walking into the police station and creating a disturbance. Fined $15 on Monday in Somerville court, he then called a special meeting of the aldermen for that night and summoned the police chief and the arresting captain to appear.

But no quorum of aldermen showed up and the meeting had to be adjourned.

President Walter J. Moran of the Somerville Board of Aldermen, who on Sunday strayed from the dry and narrow path to pay a $15 fine in his home town... but who today found justice more elastic in East Cambridge court when he was taken home after a hearing concerned with a jovial cacophony in Cambridge at two ayem.

Boys Riot in Acton School

ACTON, May 14 (INS)—Police were called today to quell a disturbance between 50 boy students of the junior and senior classes of Acton High School, which developed after the boys were ordered to leave school because they wore sports shirts.

Superintendent of Schools Richard B. Greenman had ordered the boys to wear dress shirts to school. According to police, when they arrived at the school teachers and students were mixed in a swirling mass. Many punches were being exchanged police said.

Pretty as a picture, likable as a household pet, and above all, as desirable as—well, anything, Miss Woodworth and the Lampoon, of course, have started another of those things which revolves itself around that age-old question: "What's she got that we ain't?"

MODELS PROTEST

Not of course in such coarse language, but it can be found today in the loud protests coming from a widening group of Boston's feminine circle who roundly resent the selection by the editors of Harvard's funny sheet of a girl three thousand miles away to grace their occasion.

The protests originate specifically in the Club Mannequin, a models' group, which brands the Lampoon's editors as "dim witted juveniles with eyesight corresponding to the length of their hair" in challenging the boys from across the Charles to find anywhere a group of girls whose charm and beauty can surpass those possessed by the ladies right here in Boston.

Charging that the Lampoon editors weren't seeking either charm or beauty to adorn their table at the annual dinner, the girls branded the Hollywood junket as "just another attempt at space grabbing." Wow, some space and wot a grab!

SECOND-RATE SUITORS

In the word of Miss Jane Monroe, of Boston, president of the club, the boys from the Lampoon are only "second-rate suitors, inferior in all respects to Tech students."

And just to prove it's not a case of sour grapes—just sweet dispositions asserting themselves—the girl delivered a parting shot to the Lampoon:

"We wouldn't go across the Charles to their party. It would only mean another boring night, staring at toothbrush haircuts, looking into horn-rimmed glasses, listening to silly chatter in an affected Etonian accent and being stepped on by clumsy boys wearing checkered coats, dirty white shoes—and sloppy flannel pants."

HUB UNION WAITS DOCK STRIKE END O. K.

Although reports from Washington indicated a settlement was reached during the night in the strike of 925 union craftsmen at the South Boston Navy drydock, construction remained suspended this morning and workmen appeared confused over the situation.

Officials of the union, the Boston Building and Construction Trades Council, called a mass meeting, to be held during the forenoon, to discuss the progress of negotiations and future course of action.

Carpenters and other tradesmen went on strike at the drydock, located next to the Army Base in South Boston, Monday morning because much of the work was being done by Civil Service employees and WPA workers.

The dispute has delayed a substantial portion of the Navy's $30,000,000 expansion program.

Ernest A. Johnson, secretary-treasurer, and Edwin E. Graves, agent, of the local union conferred at Washington with Rear Admiral Ben Morrell, chief of the bureau of yards and docks, on the Boston problem. WPA and A. F. of L. officials also joined the conference.

Strikes, New Threats Peril Defense Task

By the Associated Press

Mayor Thomas P. Spellacy today sought an immediate reopening of the Colt's patent firearms company at Hartford, Ct., where a defense strike is in progress. Efforts were redoubled in Washington to avert a threatened strike against General Motors Corp.

Mayor Spellacy asked Colt's employees to return to work at once pending a National Labor Relations Board election. Representatives of federal and state agencies, the management and officials of a CIO union met to try to settle the dispute.

DIRECTS NEGOTIATIONS

General Motors officials and United Automobile Workers' (CIO) Union officials met with a defense mediation board panel for 90 minutes, then reopened direct negotiations without federal mediators. Another meeting with the panel was set for late in the day.

Settlement of a 10-day-old strike of more than 500 carpenters on a $4,500,000 housing and defense project at Newport, R. I., appeared likely. Contractors agreed to increase wages from $1.12½ cents an hour to $1.25 upon completion of current work and the AFL union was to vote on the proposal to night.

A mediation board panel started efforts in Washington to settle the week-old strike of CIO steel workers at the Vandergrift, Pa., plant of United Engineering and Foundry Co. The shutdown affected 900 men, as the union asked unannounced wage increases and a union shop.

THREAT TO COAL

There was a new threat of a tie-up in the Appalachian soft coal fields, and 11 shippings on San Francisco bay were still closed by strikes.

John L. Lewis, president of the CIO United Mine Workers, said that unless southern mine operators reached an agreement this week with the union on a new wage contract, he would recommend that the 330,000 union miners withdraw from the eight-state Appalachian field, probably by May 21.

Seventy per cent of the nation's bituminous coal production was halted throughout April by a similar mine stoppage.

A spokesman for the San Francisco Bay shipbuilders, Frank Fox, declared "it's up to the government" to end the strike which has tied up half a billion dollars' worth of vital defense work.

AFL and CIO machinists have struck for wage increases from $1 to $1.15 an hour, and retention of double pay for overtime work.

Newton Man Dies In Truck Crash

Henry A. Hubbard, 46, of Bishopsgate rd., Newton Center, was instantly killed today when his light auto crashed head-on with a loaded 10-ton truck on Route 20, Brimfield.

Colliding with explosive forces, the Hubbard car was jammed, a mass of wreckage, beneath the truck. The truck trailer capsize, crushing the lighter machine and its driver.

The truck driver, named by police as Galino Conci, 35, of Elmwood st., Somerville, escaped with a shaking. His truck was traveling west and Hubbard, a salesman, was driving alone toward Worcester when the crash occurred.

The trailer truck was heavily loaded with hides. It is owned by a Cambridge trucking concern.

Hubbard had lived in Newton Center many years. He leaves a wife and 14-year-old son.

GIRL STRANGLER SUSPECT, JURY, VISIT SCENE OF CRIME

FALL RIVER, May 14—To the scene where he is alleged to have strangled to death 23-year-old Miss Irene Perry of New Bedford last June 29, Frank Pedro, 25, also of New Bedford, today accompanied the jury which will try him for his life.

Pedro asked and received permission to go with the jury, court officials and counsel over a route the government contends was that taken by the girl and her alleged "Saturday night boy friend" and ending in her murder.

The jurors and the others were taken first by Asst. Dist. Atty. Frank H. Smith of Taunton to Miss Perry's home in Stevens st., New Bedford, and from there to Menard's clothing store, a few blocks away, where she paid some money on her account and made a few small purchases on her last evening in life.

From there the party went to Christian's filling station at Dartmouth and Hollyhook sts., New Bedford, where Pedro is alleged to have met the girl.

Then the party proceeded to the town of Dartmouth and to a lane, practically a cart road, at whose end Miss Perry died.

Before the visit to the scenes, the defendant's wife, father and brother were allowed to speak to him a few minutes in the courtroom.

Clubwomen Pick 2 New Officers

Two new officers were elected today at the close of the three-day convention of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs in Swampscott: Mrs. Harvey Greenwood, fourth vice-president, and Miss Mildred Colburn, clerk.

Re-elected were: Mrs. David A. Westcott, president; Mrs. Herbert French, first vice-president; Mrs. Edward T. Broadhurst, second vice-president; Mrs. Edwin Croland, third vice-president; Mrs. W. O. E. Little, recording secretary; Mrs. Benjamin Miller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Raymond Merrill, treasurer, and Mrs. Henry W. Hilbreth, Federation director.

Malden Arson Suspect Held in $10,000

Pleading guilty to eight counts of arson, Wilbur A. Lebia, 17, of Pleasant st., Malden, was ordered held in $10,000 bonds for the grand jury today by Judge Elbridge G. Davis in Malden court.

Governor Names Three to Posts

Gov. Saltonstall today submitted the names of three men to his executive council to fill positions in the state government.

They are: Dennis A. Haverly of Worcester for deputy commissioner of state aid and pensions at $4020 to fill the place of William M. Bergan of Hull, whose term expired. Haverly now is second deputy commissioner, at a salary of $3540.

Henry V. O'Day of Quincy was submitted to fill the position that would be vacated by Haverly.

Dr. William A. R. Chapin of Springfield was named medical examiner of Hampden County, 2d district, to fill the place of Charles J. Downey, whose term expired.

Fire Routs 30 Marines In Newport Barracks

NEWPORT, R. I., May 14 (AP)—Thirty marines were forced to leap from second-story windows today when fire broke out in a barracks building. The building, a brick structure erected in 1906, suffered damage estimated unofficially at several hundred dollars.

A marine sergeant, whose name was not made public, was credited with rousing the sleeping men.

Soldiers Need Decent Girls, Dewey Learns

NEW ORLEANS, May 14 (AP)—After a dusty tramp through the red clay piney wood hills of central Louisiana, Thomas E. Dewey says he has found some of the answers as to what soldiers want to do on their day off, and is convinced Army morale is high despite some boredom with camp routine.

The New York city district attorney and 1940 Republican candidate for the presidential nomination said he had learned that soldiers want:

Decent girls to dance with and talk to.
Beer at a reasonable price, and fable tennis, bowling, swimming and handball to keep in trim.
Clubs, hotels, or huts in cities adjacent to their camps where they could get a decent bed for 25 cents and a meal for the same.
Dewey, newly named national chairman of the United Service Organizations, engaged in raising $10-765,000 for recreational facilities for soldiers outside camp areas, took to the field Monday by Army airplane to find out what soldiers wanted. He returns to New York tomorrow after visiting many of the larger camps in the South. In one bone-dry Louisiana parish, Dewey found soldiers complaining because beer was barred from their camp exchange, and they had to trudge miles to another parish to buy it, or pay increased city prices in nearby towns.

FUGITIVE CHARGE BALKS 12-YEAR-OLD'S WEDDING

NEW BEDFORD, May 14—The courtship of a 19-year-old youth and 12-year-old girl ended today as the child, Audrey Hohenstein, daughter of a wealthy farmer in Bellmore, L. I., was returned home and her alleged sweetheart, Alfred Castro, was being extradited to Mincola, L. I., as a fugitive from justice.

The girl and her mother were on a shopping trip in Bellmore when she disappeared. She was found hiding in a closet in the home of Castro's father here. The girl, who is large for her age, said she had left home alone and crossed the state line alone.

Wait Ruling on Liquor Sale to Officer

After hearing a clerk of a Washington st., South End, drug store admit that he sold two pints of liquor to a "sick" officer, members of the Boston licensing board today held in advisement a complaint against the store.

When the clerk said the two pints were needed by the officer for medicinal purposes, Commr. Edward Richardson commented that he must have been "pretty sick."

Fisher Would Tax Only Amount of Income Spent

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—A proposal that the Government tax only that portion of a man's income which he spends was advanced today by Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University as a way to encourage savings and capital investments.

A complementary part is to levy heavily on the estate left by the taxpayers at death.

Appearing before the House Ways and Means Committee in connection with a program to raise $3,500,000,000 additional revenue, Fisher said such a levy would not "kill the goose that lays the golden egg" which he contended was the case with levies on capital accumulations.

In addition to individuals, he suggested that a spending tax be applied to partnerships and corporations.

RATES OF 5 PER CENT

He proposed rates starting at 5 per cent on spendings up to $500 by single individuals and $10,000 for married couples and rising to 50 per cent on spending above $45,000 by single persons and $90,000 by couples.

In advance of applying the spending tax, the taxpayer would be allowed exemptions of $800 for single persons and $2000 for married couples, the current income tax exemptions. Deductions also would be allowed for whatever sums are saved or invested, taxes paid, business expenses and credits for dependents.

WOULD APPLY RATE NOW

Fisher argued income taxes, as presently applied, levy on savings and thus in the long range diminished the Government's return from income and estate taxes.

Present income taxes have the tendency to "eat up seed corn instead of planting it," he remarked. The Yale professor urged that something along the line of his rate schedule be applied now, instead of increasing income taxes and that later Congress adopt a broad program on the spending tax theory and eliminating income taxes entirely.

Car Ricochets After Crash, Kills Woman

As she stood at a Belmont street intersection today Mrs. Eva C. MacDonald of School st., Watertown, 53, was killed by an automobile that was in collision with a truck, then ricocheted off.

According to police, George A. Winsor, 28, of Marlboro st., Belmont, an auto salesman, was driving across School st. on Belmont st. when his machine was in collision with a truck operated by Elmer A. Cousins of School st., Saugus.

The heavy truck turned the light passenger car aside, and Mrs. MacDonald was struck. She was taken to Cambridge Hospital, where she was pronounced dead. Police arrested Winsor on charges of manslaughter and driving so as to endanger.

Woman Safe In Hingham Cottage Blast

Going into the cellar for a jar of preserves saved the life of Mrs. Catherine Hatch, 50, of Duxbury, today.

Mrs. Hatch had driven from Duxbury to a summer cottage she owns in Hingham, to inspect it. She told firemen she had started to cook her lunch on an oil stove and went downstairs to the cellar for a jar of preserves.

Just as she reached the bottom of the stairs she heard a sound like a clap of thunder, the door slammed shut behind her, she turned to hear the roar of flames.

Mrs. Hatch made her way out the back cellar door and ran a quarter-mile to telephone the fire department. The cottage, valued at $1600, was destroyed.

House Group Extends F. D. Devaluing Rule

WASHINGTON, May 14 (INS)—The House coinage committee today reversed its previous action and voted 13 to 6 to approve a bill extending the President's power to devalue the dollar without an amendment pegging the price of gold.

The committee yesterday adopted an amendment limiting the price the President could pay for gold at $35 an ounce. This provision, however, was stricken out today after a heated executive session. Members said the 13 to 6 roll call followed party line with Democrats opposing the amendment and Republicans supporting it.

New Haven Road Asks To Halt Train on Cape

Claiming a yearly loss of more than $4000, trustees of the New Haven R. R. today asked approval of the public utilities commission for their plan to abandon all rail service on Cape Cod from Yarmouth to Provincetown.

ish asked. "The answer lies inside England and inside the mind of Rudolf Hess and will be divulged only to people permitted to talk to Hess."

IN GOOD SPIRITS

In the hospital to which he was moved from Glasgow, the fugitive Nazi was said to be in good spirits and recovering from the ankle fracture and slight arm abrasions he suffered when he bailed out over Scotland Saturday night.

Hess was reported finding life "not too bad" on such English fare as good coffee, chicken, fish and eggs.

Ivone Kirkpatrick, former charge d'affaires of Britain's Berlin embassy, who first definitely identified the mysterious parachutist as Hitler's lieutenant and second designated political heir, still was with him. He was said to be talking freely with his guards and nurses.

Hess' reading material includes light English literature, including short stories.

Details of arrangements for the proposed Churchill-Hess conference were as carefully guarded as the whereabouts of Britain's prize prisoner of war.

BRITISH CAPITALIZE

Using every trick to fan German curiosity and to stir suspicions against the German government, BBC declared in its broadcasts today that preparations for the flight "could not have been made in a day, or carried out by one individual."

"Hess wasn't a mere politician," BBC declared, "but the most intimate friend of the Fuehrer, who knows him in his intimate mood."

"What facts did he know which led him to betray the friendship of a lifetime and endanger the structure of the Reich which he helped to build?" asked the British broadcasters.

(The German radio duelled with BBC. It added little to the Nazi version that Hess was impelled to fly to Britain by the hallucinatory hope of German-British peace while of an unsound mind, but cast aspersions on whatever "disclosures" BBC might be able to turn up.

(Berlin's radio found significant the fact that Hess had been moved from a Glasgow hospital to a secret place and said "it is pretty clear what kind of statements we have to expect, judging by British propaganda methods."

"The world can only be forewarned, later history will tell the truth," the German announcer said. CBS recorded the broadcast in New York.)

Observers expressed belief that the Churchill-Hess meeting might provide food for the "further statement" which Churchill yesterday promised the House of Commons would be made "in the near future."

DETAILS OF FLIGHT

BBC gave a detailed description of the flight, one broadcast adding:

"We regard the Hess action as a symptom of the deep internal enmities and strains in the leadership of the Third Reich."

"These disclosures are disguised from Germany by German propaganda and German military power, but the outside world has always, even in the darkest days, felt confident that the 1000-year Reich will not last 10 years—as Churchill commented briefly:

"There is a maggot in the apple."

The reference to a 1000-year Reich was taken from the latest Hitler speech, May 4, in which he forecast a glorious future for Germany.

BBC concluded that nothing precise would be known of Hess' disclosures until Churchill "divulges as much as he thinks fit of what

ONE PURGED . . . OTHER FLED—Seven years ago it was said throughout Germany that Hitler trusted only two men in full measure. They were Ernest Roehm (left) and Rudolf Hess. Seven years ago, despite this reputation for trust, Roehm was assassinated . . . and now the second Hitler trustee, Hess, has fled Germany.

Hess has been reading and writing in the military hospital where he lies."

BBC kept secret the exact technique of getting the broadcast to German listeners.

British sources held beliefs which varied from the conclusion that Hess had a mission, probably on behalf of himself and others. Some contended the fantastic flight was nothing but an escape.

HAD MARKED MAP

The fact that Hess had a specific destination—he had a marked map for the flight from Augsburg, Bavaria, to Scotland—indicated there were things behind the flight which are so important it may be a long time before they are revealed to the public.

Hess admittedly was in position to give the German government valuable information about Germany's political, economic and military affairs, but how far his statements could be trusted was a British problem.

Reliable sources recalled that two British government agents who thought they had received a peace bid on behalf of a dissident Nazi faction were seized by German forces when they went to a Netherlands-German border rendevous early in the war.

Hess talked freely when he parachuted out of the crash-bound Messerschmitt-110 and by all indications, he has been talking freely ever since.

The Daily Mail said he was reported to have "indicated his personal disgust with the Nazi party and its policy," as well as a growing tension behind party leaders.

TO KEEP AXIS GUESSING

"It is believed it will be much more demoralizing to keep the Axis leaders guessing how much Hess might have told and how much of their future strategy and plans he might have revealed," one source declared.

Any information obtained from Hess, it was said, will be treated with the greatest skepticism until its authenticity can be tested.

"We want to be sure we haven't a 'Trojan Hess' on our hands," one informed source joked alluding to the famous "Trojan horse" trick by which the Greeks encompassed the fall of Troy.

Some quarters described the Hess story as the most important from a propaganda viewpoint the BBC has handled since the beginning of the war.

LONDON, May 14 (INS)—The medical staff of a nursing home in London was flown today to the bedside of Rudolf Hess, fugitive No. 3 Nazi chieftain, who Britain hopes may supply the key to war victory.

A few definite facts emerged from the welter of mystery today.

1—Hess is not in a hospital any longer but is being held in some secret retreat on a heavily camouflaged private estate.

2—No one except government officials and medical men bound to secrecy have seen him or talked to him since he dropped out of the skies Saturday night.

3—The true reasons for Hess' visit may not even be fully known as yet to Prime Minister Churchill himself.

Two eminent brain specialists are among those assigned to the one-time deputy Nazi leader.

The Hess colony also includes representatives of the Army, Navy,

Air Force and foreign office and members of the Secret Service.

BRITISH HURL BACK NAZIS IN SALUM AREA

By the Associated Press
British headquarters in Cairo said today Axis troops on the Egyptian frontier had withdrawn to their original positions south and west of Salum, where they were being "continuously harassed" by the British.

The British said the Axis troops were thrown back about 40 miles. Berlin claimed German and Italian forces had pushed forward 45 miles east of the Libyan-Egyptian frontier in a surprise assault launched Monday from Salum.

British forces besieged at Tobruk, within Libya, carried out a "limited offensive operation," it was said, destroying two German medium-sized tanks and inflicting "many casualties."

In Ethiopian operations, the British reported capture of "a strongly defended enemy position" in the lake area south of Addis Ababa along with 500 prisoners, two batteries of artillery, five light tanks and an anti-tank gun.

100 ITALIAN PRISONERS

Operations of the German air force over Great Britain were on a small scale, the second straight night last night. A British communiqué said a few bombs fell on the British coast but damage was slight and casualties few.

Hitler's high command said Nazi bombers sank three merchant ships totaling 14,000 tons off the British coast and "bombed several important ports" in England in the night.

RAF warplanes raided the German North Sea island base at Heligoland, the British reported, strafing the Germans with machine-gun fire and bombs from a few hundred feet and "causing great confusion."

RAF POUNDS SHIPPING

Other RAF raiders attacked shipping off the coasts of Holland and France, pounded the Nazi U-boat base at St. Nazaire, and bombed an airbase at Ostend, Belgium.

Mussolini's high command said Italian troops "bravely repelled" a strong British tank assault in the Tobruk sector. Six British tanks were reported destroyed.

Rome also reported that a large steamer was hit during a new Italian air attack on a British convoy in the eastern Mediterranean and "military objectives" in the harbor also were bombed in an air raid on the Alexandria naval base.

Army Plot to Oust Hitler Linked to Hess

other Nazi leaders—with the exception of Goering.

"The information I have received from Germany indicates that before deciding to flee Hess tried to convert Hitler in vain that the army was plotting his overthrow. Unable to convince the leader to whom he had been faithful for 20 years, Hess apparently tried to take matters in his own hands and make a getaway to Britain.

"To understand Hess' possible motive in this melodramatic flight, it is necessary to understand what has been going on within Germany. Such information does not leak out of Germany through the censored dispatches, but we have been receiving the inside story from our own sources which manage to communicate through a 'grapevine' of our own via certain neutral countries.

NAZI FEAR DEFEAT

"The truth is that even in the lightest army circles there is not the slightest confidence in ultimate victory over England and despite the procession of impressive conquests achieved by the German military forces in various parts of Europe.

"There is a growing feeling that Germany's losses or later is coming to 'the end of the rope.' The highest army circles feel that Hitler has already overreached himself and that the time has come to throw him overboard and seek a compromise peace with England.

"In such a move, Air Marshal Goering who has the respect of the army and important German industrialists, would be the only prominent Nazi leader salvaged. The fate of the others is already sealed: Hess and Himmler were definitely marked for execution. "Apparently Hess learned of this and unable to convince Hitler that the Nazi hierarchy was in danger decided to take matters in his own hands and make a spectacular flight to Britain.

"From what I know of Hess, I have known for more than 20 years and was his personal guest at his wedding—he did not fly to Britain to betray Hitler.

TRIES MASTER STROKE

"He went there to try to put across some master stroke which would take the initiative away from the German military clique. Despite the official denial, I still believe he has some 'peace plan' up his sleeve which he intends to spring.

"While he is doing this on his own initiative and against the will of Hitler, I know Hess too well to believe that he is doing what he is doing as a traitor to Hitler and the Nazi party.

"He is too loyal to Hitler, too worshipful of Der Fuehrer for that. I think he really believes that what he is doing is for Hitler's own good—to try to save him from the fate that awaits him at the hands of the army leaders.

"It is my own opinion that this is developing into a race between Hess, as the self-constituted saviour of the Nazi party, and the German army. Whoever it is to be the first to approach Britain with a set of peace terms.

"If Britain studies what is going on behind Germany's wall of secrecy, she will turn a deaf ear to the offers of both factions—because in the long run, if they are permitted to fight it out among themselves, Germany will be in no position to bargain on equal terms with Britain.

BEGINNING TO BEND

"I can see in Hess' dramatic beginnings nothing but a defensive move against the plans known to be under way for a military push in Germany. The German generals have come to the conclusion that the invasion of Britain is a technical impossibility. They feel that Hitler has pushed the army out on an extended limb, the end of which is already beginning to bend with overwork.

"I think that Hess in his own mind thinks he is saving his beloved leader. One must understand the unwavering fanatical devotion he has always had to Hitler to comprehend this viewpoint. Of all the men around Hitler, Hess is by far the most devoted."

Strasser, who made his headquarters in France until the collapse of that country, has had many a narrow escape from the Gestapo. In 1933, he was openly accused by Himmler, chief of the Nazi Gestapo, of having engineered the bomb explosion in the Munich beer hall where Hitler spoke on the anniversary of the Nazi putsch.

He managed to get out of France a step ahead of the Gestapo last year and suddenly bobbed up in Bermuda, later coming to Canada.

HESS CRANKY ABOUT FOOD, NURSES SAY

By WILLIAM J. HUMPHREYS

AT RUDOLF HESS' RETREAT SOMEWHERE IN GREAT BRITAIN, May 14 (AP)—Rudolf Hess is fussy about the food Britain is giving him.

A visit to the hospital where physicians and nurses care for the No. 1 prisoner-patient behind guarded walls brought this one comment from an otherwise tight-lipped staff.

"He's cranky about what he eats," a member of the staff confessed. "And I guess he has reason at that. He made the flight with only compressed food tablets."

The Spartan Nazi has no individual nurse, this informant added. Instead, there is a captain of a famous regiment to keep him company and make conversation when Hess is not engrossed in one of the many mystery novels from the hospital library.

Outside the door there are soldiers of the same regiment standing guard.

"Every day," of salmon, chicken or eggs upon which Hess insists on having passes a most rigorous examination before it is admitted to his convalescent chamber.

Boston Banks on the Fishing Banks

Huge trawl nets more than 100 feet long, dragged across the ocean floor, scooping up thousands of pounds of fish at each haul. . . .

Nineteen big trawlers in the 40-Fathom fleet, fishing continuously, landing more than seven million pounds of fish a month at the Boston Fish Pier. . . .

Yet plenty of fish are still left in the sea. The great fishing banks extending over hundreds of square miles of the North Atlantic are teeming with the finest food fish in the world. With modern efficiency and conservation they can supply America's growing appetite for seafoods indefinitely.

It's a business Boston can bank on!

Senate Convoy Fees To Delay Showdown

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—A group of senators opposing Administration foreign policy discussed today the possibility of delaying a Senate showdown on the convoy issue until after President Roosevelt has indicated whether he wants to use the Navy for convoy service.

They talked over the situation as the whole convoy picture was given a new tinge because of Germany's warning to commerce plying the Red Sea.

No definite decision was reached at the Senators' meeting, but Senator Tobey (R.) of New Hampshire, author of a anti-convoy resolution, said he would have a statement later in the day.

Sen. Tobey

Tobey originally had planned to offer the prohibition against convoys as an amendment to the Administration legislation authorizing governmental acquisition of foreign ships lying idle in American harbors.

TO FIGHT CONVOYS

Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana said after today's meeting: "All are united on the determination that we should not send convoys, and we will fight that issue from hell to breakfast."

Another conferee said that "the only question involved is one of strategy and timing" and added that it might be preferable to await some presidential declaration on convoys before pressing for Senate action. The Chief Executive will make a major address May 27.

Presides Tobey and Wheeler, those attending today's meeting were Senators Taft (R.) of Ohio, LaFollette (Prog.) of Wisconsin, Brooks (R.) of Illinois, and Clark (D.) of Idaho.

Talking with reporters, Wheeler asserted that British spokesmen "and our warmongers" now are asking the President to violate his promises against involvement in war, foreign entanglements and convoys.

ACT ON SHIPS

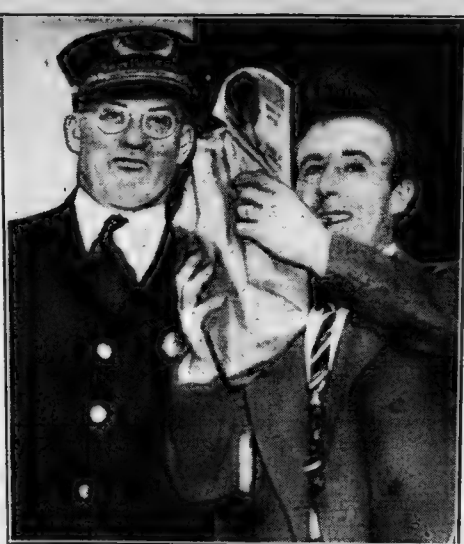

The Senate today took up the Administration bill for acquisition of idle shipping.

Administration leaders looked for quick work on the ship measure, predicting its approval as drafted within a week.

"The bill will pass about as it came from the commerce committee," said Sen. Hill (Alabama), the Democratic whip, "without any crippling amendments and without any prohibitions against convoys."

Opponents saw little hope of defeating the legislation, which already has House approval, and they were divided over the wisdom of attempting to write into the bill the anti-convoy rider sponsored by Sen. Tobey.

Off the Senate floor, meanwhile, the opinion was advanced in some quarters that Germany's decision to make the northern Red Sea area an official war zone might eventually change the status of the convoy or ship protection question.

of adequate convoy," he said.

"Such figures do not show the necessity of selection. They do not disclose what food may have been taken from the children of Britain to give her soldiers arms."

"They tell only a small part of the shipping problem to be faced in the prosecution of total war. In total war, it is total strength that counts."

The ambassador declared that "so far, the totalitarianism has been appallingly successful" in "keeping their threats and breaking their promises," warning that "when dictators conspire together, men and women of good will everywhere must act together."

Winant Sees Freedom By Use of Navies

LONDON, May 14 (AP)—United States Ambassador John G. Winant told the English-Speaking Union today that "freedom loving and peace loving people of this earth are coming to realize that this is not Britain's fight alone" and that their destinies may depend on the use they make of their navies.

He expressed hope that in debate over losses at sea of goods manufactured in the United States both Britons and Americans "realize that the mere statement of sinkings of ships from America does not tell the whole story."

"It only proves, as does the successful transport of troops to the Middle East, the protective power also described the negotiations as going beyond the economic and into the political field.

Belief was expressed, however, that they had not yet reached a final stage.

In the exchange, France was reported scheduled to receive varied advantages as, for example, the return of a number of prisoners who are primarily farm workers and a northward revision of the demarcation line, putting Paris in the zone not German-occupied and leaving the Nazis in control of only one-fifth of France.

What France is giving other than full economic and, perhaps, full political collaboration is not yet officially indicated here.

Today's communique was considered in some quarters to be more than anything a warning to the United States that France is committed to collaboration.

All it said was: "The cabinet met under the presidency of Petain. It heard a report from Darlan on French-German negotiations. It unanimously approved the terms. The effects of these negotiations will be felt soon."

One semi-official source said Darlan was expected to return to the occupied zone "very soon" to meet a "high ranking German figure."

Man Shot by Cop Held in $20,000

James McCaffrey, 25, of Tremont st., Charlestown, father of three children, who was shot by a Cambridge police inspector April 24 after he allegedly tried to run the officer down in a stolen car, was held in $20,000 bonds when he was arraigned in Middlesex Superior Court today.

McCaffrey, just released from Cambridge Hospital, appeared before Judge Harold P. Williams on two counts of assault with intent to murder, charges of larceny and operating an auto without a license.

Buckley Insists On L Audit

A demand that State Auditor Thomas J. Buckley compel Boston Elevated trustees to open their books for an impartial audit was carried to Governor Saltonstall today by the Dorchester All-Together movement.

John G. Carzis, president of the movement, urged the Governor to grant representatives of his organization a conference "for the purpose of recording our protest against the payment of any further deficits of the Boston Elevated Railway."

"It is our intention," he said in a letter, "to continue the fight against the alleged annual Elevated deficits . . . until the taxpayers are relieved of this unjust burden."

Agitation by Carzis' organization initiated study of the Elevated's accounts by the Boston Finance Commission.

YOUNG 'PUTZI' SEES RIFT IN HESS FLIGHT

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 14 (AP)—Rudolf Hess' flight from Germany is viewed as "the criterion of ruptures" in the Nazi hierarchy by Egon Hanfstaengl, whose father, Ernst (Putzi) Hanfstaengl, once headed Hitler's foreign press office.

Egon Hanfstaengl

"When ever a body leaves Germany the Nazis always declare him to be insane—always accuse anyone disagreeing with them as having 'hallucinations,'" said the 29-year-old Egon, now a private in the U. S. Air Corps at Gunter Field here.

"They said the same about my father when he disagreed, discovered a plot against himself and fled to England on his 56th birthday, Feb. 11, 1937, and I guess the same was true of Otto Strasser (who broke with Hitler and died in 1934)," he continued, obviously affected and often repeating: "That is good news. I am happy."

While seeing in the incident "the criterion of ruptures" and saying he did not think it was done "with instructions," Hanfstaengl said "I cannot, of course, on this heads, prophesy the downfall of Nazism, because no one thought Red Russia would last five years and look how it has gone on despite all its corruption and cruelty."

"GETTING THEM"

"It looks like the strain is getting them (the Nazi leaders) down," he continued, "and it looks like maybe things were going up in smoke—at least there's an indication."

Egon quit as a Harvard sophomore last February to join the U. S. Army "because I just could do nothing. In times like these, when I could be of service to the country in which I was born." The elder Hanfstaengl, formerly in business in New York, now is in a Canadian concentration camp, having been taken into custody in London at the outbreak of the war because of his former high-standing in the Nazi government.

Egon chuckled at Germany's claim of Hess having "hallucinations" of effecting a peace between the Nazis and British and recalled "Hess making opposition to a suggestion by my father of closer cooperation between England, Germany and America."

"TERRIFIC PRESSURE"

"But," he added, "they (the Nazi leaders) are working under such terrific pressure and have been for two years it is possible for all to go insane and some of them are very near it."

"I'm really not qualified to judge Hess, because I never knew him as well as I did Goering, Goebbels and Hitler, although he came to our home at Munich about as much as the rest and I used to tease him about his bushy eyebrows and he me about my being fat."

CRIMINAL ACTION LOOMS IN CHELSEA $4421 SHORTAGE

Criminal action loomed today in the snarled accounts in the office of the treasurer of the city of Chelsea.

The accounts have been revealed as allegedly being $4421 short, and a trusted clerk whose name was withheld and

City Constable George Roberts have been discharged by City Treasurer George F. Hederson.

Atty. John Batchelder explained today that in investigating the case for the bonding company that certifies Roberts, he had many talks with the constable since last Thanksgiving when he took over the case.

"He is a respectable married man, father of one child," Batchelder said. "He showed me a list of at least 1000 names on which he had worked."

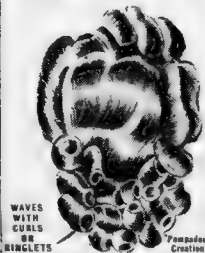

"He said he would start procedure to make a collection, then he would be called up from City Hall and told to drop the case. Some cases he collected part of the money—but in none of the cases had he been paid."

"According to these lists, if Roberts was paid the money that was due him, and his accounts were straightened out, he would be in the clear. It seems now like a matter of bookkeeping to us, but the bonding company isn't through with the matter."

Batchelder also revealed that at the beginning of his investigation he had been warned to make sure that Roberts was not being "made the goat" for someone else.

Auditors of the Division of Accounts at the State House came across the discrepancies after Hederson requested a checkup of the books. Roberts' accounts were bonded, but the girl's were not.

PROF. ROGERS' FUNERAL PLANNED

Funeral arrangements were being arranged today for Prof. Robert E. Rogers, 53, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a former colonel in the Boston Evening American and coiner of the phrase, "He a snob—It's just as easy to marry the boss' daughter as a stenographer."

The widely known instructor, writer and lecturer died at his flat at 17 Cambridge St., home after an Robert E. Rogers illness which forced him to give up his classes at Tech seven weeks ago. He had been a member of the faculty of Technology since 1913 and was raised to a full professorship in 1934. His English course was one of the most popular at the school and the demands upon his time for lectures gave him opportunities to expand his teachings and advice beyond the class room.

A native of Haddonfield, N. J., he was graduated from Harvard University in 1909. Though he tried his hand at the theater and newspaper work, his career was devoted chiefly to teaching. He wrote several books, including "How to Be Interesting."

Rogers' widow is the former Marie Leahy Baer of Philadelphia, a first cousin of Admiral William D. Leahy, U. S. ambassador to Vichy.

Besides his widow, survivors include a daughter, Desiree, and two brothers, Merrill Rogers of New York, and Sydney Rogers of Portland, Me.

Boston Seeks Share of Red Sea Shipping

Boston shipping interests, disturbed that none of the ships allocated to carry war supplies to the Red Sea are to pass through this port but will clear, instead, from Philadelphia and New York, today appealed to Washington.

Frank S. Davis, manager of the Maritime Association, pointed out that Boston is nearer the Red Sea than either of the other ports and that advantage should be taken of this consideration.

On the government's decision to withdraw 50 steamers from the intercoastal trade, the Luckenbach Line, with weekly sailings to the west coast, announced it would be forced to fortnightly sailings.

The American-Hawaiian Line, operating on a five-day schedule, will be compelled to adopt weekly sailings. Two of its vessels have been taken, the Cantonian, which has cancelled sailing for May 20, and the Alabaman, cancelling a sailing for May 30.

Freighter Here From Africa

Loaded down with a miscellaneous cargo including a deckload of mahogany logs, the armed British freighter Galaxy arrived at the Army Base, South Boston, today after a month-long trip from Africa.

Aboard were two passengers, Fr. Joseph A. Derivan, an Irish priest with 15 years service in the British African post of Nigeria, arriving at Boston instead of going to Ireland because of the war, and Miss Bessie Plant of Sundre, Alberta, Canada.

Fr. Derivan was to visit a friend, Thomas Murphy of Hammond st., Brookline, and a relative, John Moran, assistant high school principal in Pittsfield.

Golfers Jam Jordan's To Hear Little

Golfing enthusiasts crowded the Jordan Marsh Co. sporting goods department today to hear a lecture and witness a demonstration by Lawson Little, 1940 National Open golf champion.

Little, only man in history to win both the British and American amateur titles for two successive years, talked for an hour and a half on fundamentals and then spent as long a time answering questions from the audience.

DRAFTEES TO GET LITERACY TEST; TRAP FOR STALLERS

WASHINGTON, May 14 (INS)—The War Department today prescribed a "minimum literacy test" which draftees having less than a fourth grade education, must pass before Army induction.

Some of the questions are "Can you burn water by boiling it?" "Which swims more in water, a fish or a bird?" "Can paper be used to write on?" and "Which is larger, an inch or a foot?"

The department said the test will be used at induction centers to determine if a man can read and write the English language and understand it well enough to enable him to learn to be a good soldier in a year.

The department has devised special quiz "traps" for use if Uncle Sam's teachers think the draftees are stalling.

You Can Be Beautiful

A THROATLINE that shows no mark or line . . . no faltering of contour . . . like Maureen O'Hara's . . . is either the prerogative of youth . . . or of clever, unremitting care . . . and today Arlene Gould tells of a wonderful throat treatment that will keep for you that look of youthfulness . . . or help you to regain it!

Easy to Fix That Posture

By ARLINE GOULD

IF IT'S any comfort to you . . . it isn't always rapidly encroaching old age which brings on a droopy, wrinkled throatline . . . it may be a posture fault . . . and certainly there's a great deal that you can do about it.

The idea is not merely to reassure you . . . and drop the whole thing there . . . it's to tell you of a really magnificent little youth-restoring treatment you can have right at home.

In the simplest possible way, you can exercise those muscles that look so dog-tired and old . . . and at the same time smooth the skin of your throat and jaw-line until there isn't the faintest suspicion of crepiness or lines.

A fragrant, blandly rich cream is the basis of the whole thing . . . also lots of fresh, cool water, a roll of inexpensive cotton . . . and the newly-acquired skill of your own two hands! The cream is only $1.50, in an acquaintance size . . . and the rest you can figure as a matter of pennies and mils!

It's a wonderful treatment if your throat is drawn and crepey after reducing or losing weight through illness.

All you do is cut an oblong and a half moon out of the cheap cotton . . . and there is a most unique home made chin strap! Coat the throat and underchin generously with throat cream, after cleansing. Wet the oblong and half moon of cotton . . . stretch one and then let it contract around your throat . . . the half-moon going under your chin. You'll find the cotton stretches like a two-way girdle, then firms and tightens . . . and you'll feel a slight tingle as the throat cream contacts the tissues. There! Your chin strap is in action!

Place the hands together, as though in prayer, the thumbs together at the point of the jaw just above the half moon of cotton. Press the thumbs backward toward the ears, with hard, firm pressure. This brings back a firm contour marvelously and tightens loose tissues.

Pads are left on for ten minutes, and the residue of the cream stays on overnight. In the morning, use cream again to cleanse and remove any excess of throat cream that remains.

To learn about this grand new throat cream, phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, in closing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"HOLLYWOOD TODAY," by Luella O. Parsons, noted filmland authority, appears regularly in the Boston Evening American.

Hubby's Fibbing Puzzles Her

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've tried to put my fears in a box, sit on the lid and make the best of the situation. We've been married three years, are buying our home, the down-payment of which I paid out of my private savings.

When I met my husband I was divorcing the man to whom I was married then. It had been a loveless marriage. My present husband and I had much in common—dancing, hiking, swimming; in fact, all outdoor sports. We were both devotedly in love.

We've come to the point where we should like to raise a family, but I'm hesitating because of things as they are. My husband has a terrible habit of "fibbing" to make a subject better listening material. He has even gone out to what he called "business meetings," which I found out were "another woman."

He thinks he should go out whenever and wherever he pleases, even if it's another woman, although I've never refused to go places with him, and have even encouraged him to join a lodge or athletic club where he can spend evenings. I don't like to think he's hanging over a bar with another girl. He admits it.

He insists he loves me and doesn't want me to divorce him, saying he never could love another woman as he does me. But is that love? I don't want to raise children in such an atmosphere.

DOUBTFUL. It looks to me as if you're becoming as much disappointed with this second marriage as you were with your first. An honest "fibber" who tells his wife he has been out with another girl is more desirable to my way of thinking than one who spins more yarns in denying it.

You were so much in love with this second husband, you probably expected to find him an archangel. Now you're discovering that he's just human.

Tips on Eating Etiquette

DEAR MISS DECKMAN:

YOU HAVE HELPED so many others that now I am coming to you for advice.

1—I am always uncertain when I should leave my spoon when I have finished eating ice cream or soup. I mean when there is a plate under either.

2—Must one eat the salad before the main dish is served, or can it be eaten with the meal?

3—What is the usual tip for the maid when one is staying at a hotel for two weeks?

4—What tip is left for the waiter on the train, when three meals are eaten but one is not served by the same waiter?

1—If the soup is served in a soup plate, leave the spoon on the soup plate. If it is served in a cup, cream soup cup or bouillon cup, leave the spoon on the under-plate. Leave the spoon with which ice cream or other dessert has been eaten, on the dessert plate. If the ice cream or other dessert is served in a sherbet glass, leave the spoon on the under-plate.

2—If the salad is already on the table but on the side of the dinner plate, the hostess undoubtedly intends to have you eat the salad as an accessory to and with the main course—a mixed green salad, for example, with steak or chops or chicken. If the salad is in the center of your place, it is intended as a first course, and then it would be eaten alone.

3—The best and usual plan is to tip the chambermaid at the end of each week. In a first-class hotel she is given about one dollar a week a room; in a small inexpensive hotel, the tip may be fifty cents a week a room. It's better to give it to her personally, rather than to leave it on the dresser.

4—In a dining-car you should tip the waiter at the end of each meal, just as you would in a restaurant. Ten per cent of the bill is the minimum, but this is usually taken to apply to meals more than two dollars. In general, for a meal of a dollar or less, the tip is usually 15 cents, and 25 cents is usually the tip given for a meal costing between a dollar and a half and two dollars and a half.

18 Soup Can Be Central Dish For That Outdoor Supper

By MARTHA LEE

NOT ONLY does soup start the meal—it may well make it, too. Joined up with a salad or sandwiches, or both, it's the perfect answer to the question of what to serve for supper on warm spring days when you want to be outdoors gardening or just enjoying the sunshine and breezes.

Prepared home-style soups which only have to be heated before serving are made by expert chefs who know the art of delicious seasoning and perfect brewing, and it's grand to be able to depend on them for the main part of a meal. The cream soups and chowder-type soups are the best for this purpose because they are the more substantial kinds.

Below are some menus which include soup as an important item. Use them for both luncheons and suppers and for spring and summer dinners.

MENUS

ONE
Home-Style Cream of Tomato Soup
Favorite Tuna Salad
Hot Biscuits
Fresh Pineapple Wedges

FAVORITE TUNA SALAD
2 cups grated or flaked tuna
2 cup diced celery
8 tbsp. salad dressing
1/2 cup chopped sweet pickle
1/2 tsp. salt
Mix thoroughly, chill and serve on lettuce. Makes 4 servings.

TWO
Home-Style of Mushroom Soup
Shredded Cabbage
Green Pepper Salad
Corned Beef Sandwiches
Apple Pie

SHREDDED CABBAGE-GREEN PEPPER SALAD
3 cups shredded cabbage
1/2 cup finely chopped green pepper
1 small cucumber, diced
1/2 cup chopped celery
1 tbsp. minced onion
1-2 cup vinegar
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1/2 cup cream

Combine cabbage, green pepper, cucumber, celery and onion. Combine vinegar, salt and pepper; pour over vegetables and chill 30 minutes. Just before serving, add cream and mix thoroughly. Makes six servings.

THREE
Home-Style Split Pea Soup with Vegetables and Ham
Egg Salad Sandwiches
Fresh Cucumber Pickles
Canned Peach Halves

FOUR

HONEY DATE BARS
2 eggs
3/4 cup honey
1/2 cup all-bran

1/2 cup flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
2 cups chopped dates
1/2 cup chopped nut meats
Beat eggs well, add honey and all-bran. Sift flour with baking powder and salt, add dates and nut meats. Add to first mixture, beating well. Spread batter 1/4-inch thick in greased pan, and bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 30 minutes. Cut into bars while warm and dust with powdered sugar, if desired; or serve as a pudding with whipped cream. Makes 18 bars 1 1/2 x 2 1/2 inches (8x8-inch pan).

PUFFY OMELET

4 eggs, separated
1/4 tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
1/2 cup milk
1 tbsp. butter
Parsley
Beat egg yolks until thick and light; add seasoning and milk; fold into stiffly beaten egg whites, turn into buttered, hot 8-inch fryer or omelet pan and cook over heat for 3 to 5 minutes, or until omelet puffs up and is browned on bottom. (Test by raising edge of omelet with spatula.) Place in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 10 to 15 minutes, or until top springs back when pressed with finger. Cut about 1-inch incisions at opposite sides and crease down through center in line with cuts; then fold carefully on crease by slipping spatula under half of omelet to flip over. Slip on to hot platter and garnish with parsley; if an omelet pan is used, merely fold over; omelet will shrink slightly when removed from pan. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

LILACS, azaleas, lilies of the valley and other spring flowers which are blooming in profusion on the George Putnam's spacious Manchester-by-the-Sea estate, will provide colorful decorations for the dance which Mr. and Mrs. Putnam are giving Saturday evening for their debutante nieces, Maria Ames Thompson of Philadelphia, and K. Laurence Bundy of Boston...

The dance, which will be held in the house and on the broad terrace overlooking the ocean, will give the new season's debutantes a fair sample of the whirl of activity which is in store for them during the coming months.

Before going on to the dance Maria and Laurence and many of their intimate friends will be guests at the large dinner which Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson of Groton are giving at the Essex Country Club in Manchester, in honor of their houseguest, Miss Margaret MacKellar of Richmond, Va. . . .

MRS. PATRICIA PIERCE and William Fletcher, who are to be married at a fashionable wedding on Saturday, will not have to do a bit of shopping for their housewarming party . . . thanks to about 40 intimate friends who showered them with all sorts of pantry shelf provisions and ingredients for the punch, at a grocery and liquor shower given by bridesmaid Connie Wood as one of the round of pre-wedding parties . . .

Saturday's wedding will take place at the First Parish Church, Brookline, with a reception at Brae Burn Country Club . . .

MARBLEHEAD'S badminton fans will temporarily lay aside their bats and birds on the evening of Saturday, May 24th, and spend the evening socializing at the annual dinner dance of the Gut'n Feathers Club, to be held at the Eastern Yacht Club . . .

Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, Jr., of Marblehead is chairman of the party and members of the patronesses committee are Mrs. Edward H. Rudd, Mrs. David S. Garland, Mrs. Hamilton P. Edwards, Mrs. Lincoln Davis, Jr., Mrs. Henry G. Stebbins, Mrs. Bradshaw Langmaid, Mrs. Daniel Low, Mrs. Ernest J. Woelfel, Mrs. T. Hooker Barry and Mrs. Henry Taggart . . .

MRS. VIRGINIA RICE JOHNSON of Chestnut Hill, one of Boston's many feminine representatives in national tennis circles, is not only an expert player, but a good planner and executive as well . . . she has often been called upon to provide entertainment for visiting players at Longwood . . .

She is once again putting her talents to good use in planning hospitality for the galaxy of professional tennis luminaries who will come to Boston on June 11 to stage a mammoth tennis exhibition for the benefit of the British War Relief Society . . . Mr. Robert Mathews, chairman of events for the B. W. R. S., is in charge of transportation of the stars, and after he sees that they get here safely, Mrs. Johnson will see that they are housed and entertained . . .

Tennis enthusiasts will have a field day on the 11th, for the outdoor matches will be held on the beautiful grass courts at the Longwood Cricket Club and will feature Don Budge, Mary Hardwick, Fred Perry and Vin Richards . . . All are donating their services in order to express their sympathy with the worthy cause.

Announcements of the benefit matches are just being mailed to a public that has often expressed appreciation of the British War Relief Society's practice of giving the customer a good show for his money . . . Many of those having a hand in earlier benefits are assisting with this one . . . with prominent figures in local tennis circles lending expert aid . . .

WEARING lovely summer gowns to vie with the brilliance of a profusion of gold braid and insignias, Rosemary Malone and Cappy O'Connell of Chestnut Hill will be two of the many attractive girls dancing with Army dignitaries at the Military Ball at the Copley-Plaza Friday evening. The ball is sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the 101st Infantry.

Patriotic Motif at Ball

A red, white and blue motif will provide patriotic decorations for the gala military ball to be held at the Copley-Plaza, Friday evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the 101st Infantry.

American flags, draped around the insignia of the 101st, will decorate the boxes and one end of the ballroom will be hung with flags and colorful bunting. Tri-color flowers and linen will decorate the supper tables and even Harry Marshard and his boys will enter into the spirit of the occasion by wearing white dinner jackets with red, white and blue boutonnieres.

Ten non-coms are coming up from Camp Edwards to perform ushering duties, and there will be a number of military dignitaries in gold braid leading the grand march.

Mrs. and Mrs. Joseph O'Connell, Mrs. James J. Phelan and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gavin are among the latest boxholders and patrons and patronesses for the dance include Col. and Mrs. John B. Others enjoying the dance will be Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Ford, Miss Dorothy Hagerly, Mr. Edward L. Logan, Miss Virginia Kenney, Miss Catherine McCarthy, Mr. Charles W. Fennessey, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic T. Coffey, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hines and many others.

A New Figure for Spring 19

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By IDA JEAN KAIN

You may be normal weight and not have a good figure and get away with it—until the swim suit season calls for thigh exposure. This portion of the figure seems to be the measurement most in evidence in a beach brevity and it is the one most affected by the lack of muscle tone.

Hop into your swim suit and check up on your thighs. A lively measurement varies from 19 inches for the slight frame to 22 inches for the heavy frame. Or, if you want to go by the Hollywood standard, your thigh should measure three and one-half times the size of your wrist.

The tape should be circled about the largest part of the upper leg—slightly more than half way from knee to hip. With normal weight and a perfect thigh measurement, you are not likely to have the disfiguring lumps and hollows that mean flabby musculature.

A SIMPLE EXERCISE

But you can trust your eyes and conscience more implicitly than scales and tape measures. If you haven't exercised, it's high time you took a few thigh beautifiers:

Lie on your back on the floor with knees flexed and feet together on floor near hips. Very slowly and forcibly spread knees as far apart as possible, then bring together just as slowly. Concentrate on the outward movement, making the hip and thigh muscles work. This exercise is especially good for developing a smooth inner thigh-line. Repeat slowly ten times.

Rest for a minute, then go on to the next thigh strenuous: Lie on the back on the floor with legs straight in the air at right angles to trunk. Separate the legs in a wide Y, then cross, separate again, and cross over. Continue for five counts, rest, and do five more counts.

OUR SIX GOVERNORS have united to make the approaching summer the most prosperous in the history of the New England recreational industry.

In an invitation addressed to all the people of the Americas, the Governors say:

"We, the Governors of the New England States, cordially invite you to visit our New England for your vacation this year.

"Here you will find and may become part of a delightful way of life, in which the amenities of today are happily blended with the mellow traditions of three hundred years.

"Everywhere you will be greeted with New England's warm hospitality—in our serene old cities, villages sheltered by wineglass elms, rocky coasts, sandy beaches, friendly wooded mountains, crystal lakes and streams.

"Inevitably you will respond to the charm of the New England scene and its wealth of historic associations.

"Workable democracy was first demonstrated in this country in the New England town meeting, and you will find rest and inspiration in the halls where liberty was born and by the monuments which commemorate the building of a nation of free people.

"May we expect you?"

These statements contain no exaggerations.

A SCENE THOUSANDS WILL SEE AND ADMIRE
New England Ready To Be Host to Nation This Summer

The American who wisely resolves to spend his vacation in New England will not be disappointed.

Rather he will be inclined to exclaim:

"Why did I not come here before? No wonder every New Englander remains a New Englander to the end of his days, cherishing always a desire to go back to the scenes of his childhood."

A week spent in one of our shore resorts is the experience of a lifetime.

The New England Council rightly says:

"Along New England's 2500-mile coastline—dotted with seaports and fishing villages, broken by coves, sandy beaches, and precipitous headlands and strewn with myriad fir-capped islands—lies a paradise for those who think life's incomplete without the gleam of sun on blue water, the tang of ocean breeze, the wheel's kick, the sting of spray."

An inland journey is equally satisfying.

We have more than one thousand mountains, including majestic Washington, which rises a mile above the hilly countryside.

In close proximity to the mountains are 5000 lakes and ponds, some of them veritable seas teeming with fish.

We also have 4000 miles of hiking and bridle trails, 1200 miles of modern ski trails, 600 golf courses, 150 yacht clubs and innumerable tennis courts.

And everywhere the visitor will find excellent highways which take him through villages that have changed little since the golden era of Emerson and Lowell; past quaint cottages and imposing mansions that inspire architects all over the nation; by great institutions of higher learning like Harvard, Dartmouth, Boston College and Yale, and into deep valleys overhung with pine-mantled cliffs.

When evening comes, the tourist may share the solitude of the moose and the loon, as the New England Council further says, or "drop easily into the active life of a community gay with golf and tennis, dancing, swimming, riding and colorful regattas.

"PLEASE QUOTE again the poem about the married couple that had an argument" is request from Boston. I guess the above must be what this client had in mind. Byron wrote more about love than Tennyson, but the latter had a deeper understanding of the subject and was not so cynical about matrimony.

MORE THAN 2,000,000 women are collecting alimony in the United States. Average alimony check is $15 a week. I don't know who collects the most alimony, but she probably lives in Hollywood. Some women pay men alimony but not many. Only three States provide for discontinuance of alimony when the divorced wife re-marries: New York, Louisiana and Colorado. That a woman should continue to collect alimony when she marries again doesn't seem right to me, but there must be a reason for it. In Boston, courts usually do not grant alimony to a childless wife. I can't say I think that is right either. Maybe the alimony payers and receivers should organize to better the alimony situation.

CONFIDENTIAL: School teachers usually make good wives, but are said to be very difficult for husbands to train. They want to be the supreme ruler of the household. ASIDES: That the British paid no attention to Lindbergh's warning as to the size of the Nazi Air Force is not altogether correct. In 1939, Lindbergh, according to the London News-Review, made a confidential report to the United States government regarding the power of the Nazi Air Force. This information was relayed to London and was what caused Premier Chamberlain at Munich to agree to Adolf Hitler's terms. . . . Influenced by the objections of petty snobs among the male students, some spineless university co-eds are refusing invitations to military training camp dances. The snobbery of a certain type of college student is the nastiest and most disgusting snobbery of all.

PASSING BY: Victor McLaglen. Massive thespian. A man of much experience he was provost marshal of Bagdad during a period of the World War. Victor, a six-footer, has six brothers and one sister, all six-footers. His mother and father were both over six feet tall. And his son is a six-footer. Great height and red hair seems to run through families consistently. . . . Fannie Hurst. Sells every story she writes now. But she sent her first story out to 29 different editors before it was sold. Fannie was one of the original advocates of separate apartments for man and wife. This isn't such a bad idea if the apartments are in the same house.

GUESSING: "Why do we have to go to war?" asks President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago. I don't know, but can't I join in the general guessing? When our statesmen left our Atlantic Coast defense to the British fleet this country was from then on tied up in a way that made it imperative to help Britain in any European trouble that might come up. It was an entangling alliance. Enabled the British to say to us: "You can't let us lose. The enemy will get our fleet and then attack you."

STEWART WILL HAVE
ARMY BUDDY

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, May 14—A new German government is being organized here and in Canada, by a man who was one of the leaders of the old Weimar Republic and who escaped from a concentration camp. He also is organizing a Carl Schurz battalion for Canada, to be composed of German exiles who are anxious to fight the Nazis. Herr B. hopes to attain government-in-exile status for his group . . . PRIVATE JIMMY STEWART: Matty Fox, the 32-year-old vice-president of Universal Films, will follow you into the Army. He's being drafted . . . HARVEY D. GIBSON: Because there's no World's Fair to attract visitors this summer, the hotel owners will inaugurate a national campaign to bring the customers here. The stress will be upon New York City as an ideal "vacation land" . . . "BUGSY" GOLDSTEIN: The Governor usually grants reprieves when—as in the case of Pittsburgh Phil and you—three members of the Court of Appeals voted for a new trial. But the Governor will not intercede—and Phil is ready to sing everything he knows . . . ANDRE MAUROIS: Aren't you planning to leave for South America soon, on a tour of political speech-making? . . . DUKE OF WINDSOR: Vanderbilt's Lockheed plane, in which you flew to Miami, was commandeered yesterday by the government at factory-price.

TALLULAH
BANKHEAD

TALLULAH BANKHEAD: Fred Keating says that he'll tour with you this summer, in the play, "Her Cardboard Lover" . . . MET. OPERA: A new American opera, to be written by Marc Blitzstein, already has been commissioned. Its title will be "New York Opera," and the stars will be a Met baritone and a hotcha comedienne . . . B'WAY ASS'N: George White will close his "Gay White Way" for the summer and reopen on Labor Day . . . EDDIE RICKENBACKER: Susan Paley, the Conover model who builds her own racing cars, and who holds some speedway records, hopes to be the first woman to try for a competing place at the Indianapolis Speedway race . . . AMBASSADOR HU SHIH: The American government will open the Burma Road and make sure that supplies will reach your government in China. The foremost motors and traffic expert will be sent there soon to make a survey as to the most effective way of getting the supply trucks through, on schedule, and with no damage.

FIORIELLO LAGUARDIA: Ed Flynn will get you the Democratic nomination for mayor if you agree to be a candidate again . . . GEORGE JEAN NATHAN: If Eugene O'Neill's present condition continues, then his play, "The Ice Man Cometh"—which you said was the best America ever had seen—will not be produced. He says he just isn't interested in the drama while the world is in its present state . . . COMMISSIONER VALENTINE: Mike Rosenberg, a member of the Draft Board in Manhattan, was confronted with a case in which the draftee is a policeman. Rosenberg's wife, Anna—the labor relations specialist, Social Security executive and administrator of ten other jobs—asked the mayor whether he still was anxious for patrolmen to receive deferments. The mayor said he'd prefer that. And so Mike Rosenberg deferred that policeman—although six weeks ago that very cop gave Mike a traffic ticket . . . WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE: When Leon Henderson appeared before you last week, advocating a 20 per cent tax on automobiles, some of your members expressed fear that car owners would have to find other means of transportation within a few years because of auto breakdowns . . . Henderson owns and operates a 1929 car.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER: Katharine Brush tried to do some Pan-American good will. She brought the attention of a Hollywood producer to a book written by a South American lady. The producer wasn't interested, but made another movie. The South American brought a 50,000 plagiarism suit . . . ADELAIDE MOFFETT: Your husband, Bill Buckner, has a contract to produce movies in Mexico . . . CHAIRMAN JIM FLY: Several radio officials—who will suffer from a FCC ruling of last week, affecting the radio chains—will issue their first blasts at you when you appear at their convention in St. Louis.

LISTEN, WORLD!

ELSIE ROBINSON

WHY ARE the Germans winning? Perhaps you think they are winning because of their mechanized units. In which case, guess again.

They are winning because of the stamina and discipline which have been pounded into them from birth and which today know no faltering or fear in face of fear.

This will not be a pleasant statement for most Americans to follow. We do not like to concede virtues to a rival nation. Still less do we like to admit that any alien country may have it all over our American way of life in any respect. BUT THE SIMPLE TRUTH IS THAT THE GERMANS HAVE PREPARED THEMSELVES FOR THIS JOB OF WORLD REVOLUTION—AND WE AMERICANS HAVEN'T.

Which statement is based on brass-tack statistics . . . and the statement of a man who knows as much about the human body as any medico on earth, Dr. Victor G. Heiser. Remember, he wrote "An American Doctor's Odyssey" and stirred up a pot that's still boiling?

THERE'S NO USE deluding ourselves. Whether Hitler ever invades these shores or not, we are caught, inevitably, in those vital changes which are sweeping the earth and of which he is only the symbol.

AMERICA'S DESTINY CALLS FOR A HAPPIER, HEALTHIER, PRIVATE LIFE . . . FOR A WISER, KINDER INDUSTRIAL LIFE . . . FOR A CLEANER, STRONGER PUBLIC LIFE.

AND WE AREN'T GOING TO WIN THESE THINGS BY LAWS . . . OR BULLETS . . . OR EMBATTLED REGIMENTS, WE'RE GOING TO WIN THEM BY SANER MINDS AND SOUNDER BODIES.

Dr. Heiser tells the story of that struggle in his book "TOUGHEN UP, AMERICA!" recently released by Whittey House. He tells us, and frankly, the unpalatable truth—namely, that we Americans have become so soft and self-indulgent that we couldn't last through the first round if the seasoned scrappers of Europe took a swing at us.

IT'SN'T A PREACHY book—nor a warning book. Nor, praise be, is it one of those vague, philosophical discussions which leave you right back where you started.

To the contrary, Dr. Heiser tells us exactly, and in the simplest terms, of the things which affect our fighting morale; the things we Americans have neglected in our race for success and our love of luxury.

Our silly ways of eating, frinstance, and sillier ways of thought. Of constipation of the colon and intelligence . . . hardening of both arteries and imagination . . . Toxic attitudes that will kill you faster than any pus pocket. What alcohol does to you and doesn't.

FOR HERE ARE THE MAKINGS OF OUR HOME DEFENSE. There's only one body of citizens who can take care of our home morale and that's—YOU AND ME. And we can only do it by growing up and getting wise to ourselves.

MY DAY

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Tuesday—Yesterday evening, in New York City, Mrs. Henry Goddard Leach called for Mrs. Morgenthau and me to go to the Women's City Club dinner. It was the 25th anniversary of the founding of the club. I was sorry that my old friend, Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, in whose house the idea of a woman's city club was first discussed, could not be present. But Dr. Josephine Baker, who was among the founders, presided with grace and efficiency.

I did not join the club until my husband returned to New York City in 1920 from Washington, but I have had the good fortune to know many of the original founders. I remember with affection and admiration, Miss Mary Garrett Hay's leadership in the first days when I became active on the board.

I was particularly pleased last night to note the youth of many of the chairmen of the committees, who stood up to take their bows. I have always felt that when young people come into an organization, that organization is on a firm foundation and will continue to grow.

The platform for next year was read by the club's new president, Miss Bartlett. Then Mr. Newbold Morris, who frequently pinch-hits very successfully for the busy and overburdened Mayor of New York City, discussed this platform and gave the point of view of a city official on some of the things which the women suggested.

His talk was excellent and the audience listened attentively.

Mrs. Morgenthau and I flew to Washington this morning. It was certainly grand to return and be met by so many smiling faces, to find the President feeling much better and our son, Elliott, and his wife, Ruth, still here. In these times, when our children scatter to parts unknown, under orders, even a day or two, or a few hours here and there, make a difference in life.

ALICE FAYE'S HUBBY
TO BE IN PICTURE

By Louella O. Parsons

Phil Harris

HOLLYWOOD, May 14—When Darryl Zanuck talked with Alice Faye after her marriage to Phil Harris and she told him of her happiness, the scolding he had in store for her was forgotten. He and all the studio crowd had tried to persuade Alice to wait to marry Phil Harris until September—but when has anybody in love ever been sensible? So now, Darryl, being a good business man, has decided to make Alice's bridegroom an offer to appear in her next musical, "Great Guns," to be produced by William Le Baron.

In addition to the telephone calls from Alice, I received a wire signed "Alice Harris." Earlier in the day I heard that Alice was going to elope and printed it in my column but said the studio was trying to talk her out of it. The bride and groom celebrated their elopement last night at the Charley Foy night club in the valley, where they first met.

ALICE FAYE

hides good, being able to beat the other studios to the boxoffice with the best idea in years.

I AM SURE you will all be interested to hear that Ralph Holmes, young brother of Phillips Holmes, and son of the famous actor, Taylor Holmes, is being tested for the role of Rudolph Valentino at the Edward Small studios. Unlike Phillips, Ralph is dark and when I talked with Eddie Small he said young Holmes is the Valentino he had been looking for so long. Poor Jack Dunne, Sonja Henie's skating partner, was originally named for the Valentino role in "The Days of Valentino" when Dunne suddenly died. Holmes is married to Libby Holman, the torch-singer who had so much publicity at the time her first husband, Smith Reynolds, tobacco heir, killed himself.

AMUSING IS THE STORY told about J. P. Marquand's first day on the M-G-M lot. Marquand, author of the best seller, "H. M. Pulham Esquire," was brought to Hollywood to adapt his own movie. The photographers were told to make some still pictures of him and try as they would they couldn't make the author smile—or even look pleasant. Finally one of the photographers who had caught the name Marquand, said, "Can't you pep it up please, Mr. Mark Twain?" Marquand didn't smile after that—he roared with laughter. "Just think," he cracked, "I have been in Hollywood two days and I have already been promoted."

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Drew Eberson, Glenda Farrell's heart for so long, and Francis Clendenen, very good friend of Gene Towne's, were married in New York April 17; Johnny Downs and June Draper will wed June 28 and honeymoon in Honolulu; Ilona Woolsey, pretty secretary to Bill Moore of the Esky Company, and Lester Salkow, eloped today. Bet I knew it before Bill did; George Raft's gift to "Peacemaker" Marlene Dietrich is a ring shaped like a raft set with rubies; Tallulah Bankhead has checked in at El Rancho Vegas to wait for her divorce from John Emery; Jack Dempsey, completely surrounded by pretty girls at Larry Potter's Jade cafe; Mrs. Ernst Lubitsch, Mrs. Marylyn Leroy and Mrs. Milton Bren choo-chooed out on the Silver Chief for Detroit. They will pick up the Messerschmitt plane given them by Lord Beaverbrook and exhibit it all over the country to raise funds for Britain; Raga Ragland arrived to discuss the role he created in "Panama Hatline" with M-G-M.

LOUELLA PARSONS, famed internationally circulated Hearst motion picture columnist, will be heard locally over station WEEI every Friday between 10 and 10:30 p. m.

24 Martha Scott Has Spirited Role at Paramount, Fenway

Co-Starred With Gargan

Martha Scott, who prepped in New England's summer theaters before Boston discovered her in Thornton Wilder's great play, "Our Town," is to be seen on the Paramount and Fenway screens, starting tomorrow, in "Cheers for Miss Bishop."

Currently co-starred with William Gargan in Richard A. Rowland's first United Artists release, Miss Scott appears as the spirited young Ella Bishop who is sought and loved by three men.

From the time she was born 24 years ago at Gee's Creek, Mo., to the day she was graduated from a Kansas City high school, Martha has more or less followed a small stream of life. When she had entered the University of Michigan she had decided to become a teacher, and conducted a class for six months before she realized that she would be happier as an actress. She spent her college days principally in this area. Then she was suggested for the part of Emily in the Broadway production of "Our Town." Producer Lee Harris tested

She played the same role in Sol Lesser's filmization, which brought her to Hollywood a second and infinitely more triumphant time than originally when the powers that be decreed she didn't have the face for it . . . the planes and everything else about it were already in the camera.

You'll discover how wrong "they" were when you see her in "Cheers for Miss Bishop." Supporting her are Gargan and Edmund Gwenn, Sterling Holloway, Sidney Blackmer, Mary Anderson, Dorothy Peterson, Marsha Hunt, Donald Douglas, Rosemary DeCamp, John Arledge, William Bakewell, William Farnum and others.

Judy Canova, a Boston stage and radio favorite, is the star of companion picture, "Sis Hopkins," the one-time Mabel Normand vehicle.

STARS—Martha Scott, who reached stardom in "Our Town," comes to the Paramount and Fenway screens tomorrow in "Cheers for Miss Bishop," co-starring with William Gargan.

Bette Davis Newest At Scollay-Modern

Bette Davis, Boston's own Academy Award winner, comes to the Scollay and Modern screens on Friday in her latest Warner Brothers' release, "The Great Lie."

Importantly featured with her are Mary Astor and George Brent.

On the same bill will be "Knock-out," story of a two-listed young slugger who must choose between a boxing-ring and a wedding-ring with Arthur Kennedy, Olympe Bradna, Virginia Field and Anthony Quinn.

'Marco Millions' at Tributary Theater

The newly founded Tributary Theater will present its first major production, "Marco Millions," which has an Oriental locale, tonight at the Copley Theater. Elliot Duvey, who has become well-known for his staging of "Macbeth" and "Dr. Faustus," is directing.

Fiedler to Present Varied Program at Pops Tonight

Arthur Fiedler will present the following numbers at the Pon Concert in Symphony Hall tonight:

March, "National Emblem" Bagley
Overture to "Oberon" Weber
"Chester," American Revolution-
Hymn Billings
Fantasia, "Madame Butterfly" Spontini

Mr. Koerner, who succeeds John J. O'Connor, went from Boston to Los Angeles two years ago to become the Keith West Coast division manager. As general manager his headquarters will be in New York.

The new Keith high executive made an impressive record as showman while in Boston. It was generally felt that his elevation to top office would be only a question of time. Native of New Orleans, he has been active in the show world for 25 years, all the time climbing higher and higher.

'Topper' Fare At Bowdoin

Bowdoin's starred attraction through Friday is "Topper Returns," another in the series deriving from the enormously funny Thorne Smith novel and starring Joan Blondell and Roland Young with Eddie "Rochester" Anderson. On the same program is "Mr. Dynamite," starring Lloyd Nolan.

E. V. DURLING, nationally noted columnist, writes "On the Side," regularly in the Boston Evening American.

'REVUE CONTINENTAL' DUE AT RKO-BOSTON TOMORROW

The show that travelled 'round the world . . . A. B. Marcus' "Revue Continental" . . . is headed for the RKO Boston stage-door tomorrow, to commence a four-day engagement.

With its cast of 75 including an internationally celebrated beauty chorus of 40 girls, it is thoroughly in line with the current RKO Maytime Jubilee entertainment plan. For film fare, the RKO Boston screen will offer "King of the Zombies," with Dick Purcell, and "The Singing Hill," starring Cowboy Gene Autry.

The Marcus outfit, recently returned from a three-year world tour, boasts baggage-stickers from Japan, China, the Philippines, South Africa, India, Burma, the Federated Malay States, Java, Hong Kong, Cuba, Mexico, etc.

Advance word has it that it boasts as well a spirited cast and as varied and entertaining an array of production numbers as this last stand of vaudeville has offered this season.

Fairbanks in Gayety Film

The Gayety's screen bill through Thursday headlines "Angels Over Broadway," which teams young Doug's Fairbanks, Thomas Mitchell and Rita Hayward. On the same program is "Brigham Young," Western drama with Tyrone Power, Mary Astor, Dean Jager and Linda Darnell.

'GAY DIVORCE' IS REVIVED AT SHUBERT

By PEGGY DOYLE

Continuing their policy of mining gold from them, their old-timers, the Brothers Shubert last night revived Cole Porter's "Gay Divorce," within a hoot and a holler of its world-premiere stand.

The last would be the Wilbur. It was from there, pushing midnight of Nov. 7, 1932, that ecstatic first-nighters virtually danced into the street singing the praises of the marvelous Porter score, Fred Astaire's divine dancing, Luella Gear's killing comedy sense and Dorothy Stone's blonde freshness.

Scene of last night's revival was the Shubert Theater, which was well and enthusiastically filled for the occasion.

Charles Collins is playing the role Astaire played so successfully on stage and screen with Dorothy Stone and Ginger Rogers in that order. Mrs. Collins (nee Dorothy Stone), who continues to look as fresh as the well-known pink, is repeating in her original role . . . he is the too briefly glimpsed Miss Gear.

The Collinses, who are prime favorites with nightclub patrons and theater audiences, are pleasing as the mystified Guy and the mysterious Mimi. They are never more attractive than when they are dancing together, which is something they do to the immense satisfaction of supper-club haunts between stage engagements.

Archie Robbins, fugitive from the Mayfair, is playing what is known as his first straight role as the musical's not too ethical lawyer. His well-wishers, many of them holding a rare rendezvous with the footlights, were openly enthusiastic when he and his turnbanned aid, Stan Ross, did a novel double on impersonations of Lionel Barrymore, George Arliss, Eddie Cantor, Ned Sparks and others. It's a clever stunt.

Dorothy's high schoolish-appearing sister, Paula Stone, turns up with a pert performance as Alty. Robbins' partner-in-chieftainery.

Miss Gear, who wasn't done right by in her most recent Hub appearance, has practically all of the musical's fattest lines. And she's the girl who knows what to do with them! And speaking of lines, there are some that seemed rather too baldly stated, or perhaps the Hays' sweater ukase is making us finicky.

"Night and Day," of course, continues to be the hit tune of the show, and what a lovely one it is! Other numbers are "After You Who?" sung by Collins; "Why Marry Them?" which Paula Stone and the girls join in. Archie Robbins adds his voice to theirs for "Salt Air," "Rhyme or Reason" (from "You Never Know") and the Collinses duet in "I've Got You On My Mind."

The Old Man's Pin

By Anthony Rud

HERE had been mystery as well as tragedy in his father's life. Bing Weldon had known that even before his mother's death in 1931, when Bing himself was nine years old. In the years before that the three Weldons had lived in a great show place near Oyster Bay, on Long Island. Charles Weldon had been head of a young but prosperous brokerage house, a smiling, gregarious man with just enough shrewdness and native wit in his make-up so his boy son looked up to him as a sort of a god or demigod.

Later, when the mother was gone, Bing had lived in a small, gloomy apartment in Brooklyn. The broker's business was gone—and with all the smiles and easy camaraderie of Charles Weldon. The boy toiled somewhere in black ink and overalls. He never complained, never even told his son that he started an apprenticeship as a master plumber.

In fact, Charles Weldon, being too much of a man to jump out of a high window just because depression had come and a trust-business partner had proved to be a double-crossing crook and put him through a most disagreeable surgery, simply had recalled it as a young man he had been fond of. Taking this into consideration, with most lines of behavior closed to him, Charles Weldon calmly had put aside his life collars forever, and started to learn, at the age of 34, how to become the best plumber in Brooklyn.

But meant years of life on a dance, before any real fruits would come. Even at best these fruits probably never would be enormous. Charles Weldon ceased talking, and went grimly to work.

PROMISING LAD
Bing got little spending money as a lad, until the summers came around and he made it for himself. He ran a baker's delivery wagon with an old white horse to draw the first working summer. And then it was he got the idea of college. He started to save. Also, when he went to sophomore year high school, he found a new interest in studies. He did well that year.

The following summer he got a minor clerkship with a jewelry firm—and this was a turning point in his life. The job was really just being an errand and office boy. But Bing pitched in and did well. Also he found out something. His father specialized in class pins and fraternity and sorority pins for high school and college. By the time Bing went back to junior year of high school he had persuaded the manager of his branch store to let him try to sell class pin rings and other small articles of the sort to his classmates.

That year he cleared—saving most of it—$112.33 in commissions on these sales. And he had a better job to go to in the summer. The manager considered he had promised.

During this time, and the following year, when Bing won a regional scholarship to Dartmouth, he told his father a little of his plans. The old man just seemed to shrink in upon himself, saying nothing. Bing asked him once if he had ever attended college, but the grim-faced father said something about a school of hard knocks. The old man was now a master plumber, with a small place of his own. But he did not want Bing to follow in his steps, and almost roughly kept the boy away from the deep familiarity and comradeship which Bing wanted with him.

It was odd, but Bing thought he saw unshed tears in the father's eyes, times when the lad insisted on talking Dartmouth to him—asking, football, fraternities, a wonderful English-appreciation class, and other factors of life in far-away Hanover.

When Bing finally masticulated, he had an account in the college bank which would see him through the first semester. Also he had an agency for his jewelry firm, and meant to get busy as soon as possible selling trinkets to his own classmates. Later, to all four classes, but this would not be so good for a freshman to try.

It proved hard. Freshmen did not need pins, rings or anything of the sort until spring came. They were not allowed to join fraternities until sophomore year. So Bing had to save and scrimp. He never would have made it at all, probably, except for the funny mistake the bank seemed to make. This time there were deposits credited which Bing himself had not made. At first he just eyed them suspiciously. Then he went to the bank—and learned that his silent father, saying nothing, had sent three checks, each for $100, to be credited to the boy's account.

NO ANSWER

Bing got a choked feeling down inside. He wrote his father the warmest letter he ever had penned to anyone. The old man did not answer. In fact, when Bing came home triumphant, with four A's and a B for his last semester, and Rufus Choate rating for the year, the old man just clasped his hand and said, "Good lad!" and then turned away.

He seemed to avoid Bing. Especially was that so while Bing worked and saved that summer, now and then spending abroad with the father about fraternities. These would bid men as soon as college started in the fall.

This autumn when he went North the father handed him a check for $250 to add to his own savings, but would not be thanked. Bing went on the train with his heart aching. His father, no doubt, felt the lack of college himself, but was glad Bing had gumption enough to get that much education.

When the waited day came, three fraternities offered bids to Bing Weldon. He chose Dilembda Chi, and wrote his father all about what a wonderful bunch they were, and how they had this and that athletic celebrity and class officer, and so forth, and how their new house on Tuck Mall was a sort of architectural cross between the Lincoln Memorial and the Astor Roof.

The old man did not answer. Bing felt rather badly about that, but things were humming. Initiation . . . banquet . . . the first house party.

And it was at the first house party, with a few old grads back to see the new brothers, that Bing heard his own name spoken. It seemed that in the class of 1917 there had been a frat brother called Slasher Weldon, an All-American football end, who had gone into the air service of the United States immediately upon graduation.

Bing asked no questions, but rather wondering what this earlier and more celebrated Weldon looked like, wandered into the billiard room where displayed photos of the entire chapter, taken each year and with names printed below the rows of self-conscious faces, took a look at a JUNE, MAY, 1917 1916 . . . yes, here was the group for 1917.

Then it was that Bing's sparkling brown eyes grew suddenly wider and his cheeks paled under the skylight. For a long space of seconds he could not move. He was looking with something like terror into the smiling, pictured face of his own father.

It just could not be. It could not. Feverishly Bing turned to the crowded shelf where stood dusty copies of the Agias, the Dartmouth class annual. Thumbing through the volume for 1917, Bing stared at the seniors. Yes! Here it was!

Charles ("Slasher") Weldon, All-American end, 1914-15, Casque and Gauntlet, Dilembda Chi, Palaeoptilus, 1916-17, hockey squad, 1916, Jack-o'-Lantern editor, 1916-17, Magna cum laude. Home: Locust Valley, N. Y.

Under the photograph itself was one more fact. "Voted member of the Class of 1917 most likely to succeed."

Gulping, shivering, Bing went back into the huge living room and there, when he got a chance, he asked the old grad who had mentioned the name of Weldon, about his own father.

BING HEARS TRUTH

The old grad was expansive. He talked. In fact, when he knew this youth was the son of his old friend, he talked for a solid hour. Bing listened, white of face, and scarcely heard when the chapter secretary, smiling, put in:

"Oh, sure, Bing. Maybe you didn't know it but your old man wrote up here, saying you were coming. We couldn't let a legacy like Slasher Weldon's son escape us!"

"Well," said Bing, breathing rather queerly. "I—I guess I've got some fast growing to do, as I'm ever going to fill his shoes!" One thing Bing realized, as he was crossing the snow-dusted campus that starry night on the way back to his room in Tupper Hall, was that his father never had worn a pin or mentioned a college fraternity. Never since Bing was old enough to remember, at any rate. Had he really felt the disgrace of his one financial setback that deeply? Of course, as Bing recalled now, there had been criminal court action against one of the brokerage firms, though not against his father. But the old man must have taken it to heart. "Most likely to succeed . . ."

The lad opened his salesman's case of frat pins. Here was what he wanted. A rather plain platinum pin set with four diamonds, and the Dilembda Chi ruby. It retailed at $75. Bing grinned happily when he recalled that he had been planning on spending about this much on some girl—identity still to be determined. Christmas vacation. Well, Christmas was going to be something else again, this year!

He boxed the pin, then opened it again. He'd send a letter with it, and the whole thing registered and insured. He sat down and took pen and paper.

Dear Brother Dad (he wrote). Tonight I found out. I'm so darned proud of you I'm just about to bust—proud because you set your chin and made good when the first and easiest way exploded. Your train, which I'll meet, leaves Grand Central 6:40 a. m. Saturday. I want the bunch to know my dad. Your son and brother, Bing.

Friday noon a yellow telegram was tucked under Bing's door. CAN'T REFUSE COMING—WEARING PIN—PROUD OF MY SON—LOVE—BROTHER DAD.

G-Men Fight Against Odds

Our Austen Lake in England

By AUSTEN LAKE
(STAFF REPORTER, BOSTON AMERICAN)
(Copyright, 1941)

ON CONVOY FROM ENGLAND, May—One rarely finds a man more sincerely devoted to his craft than Dave Harding, the Canadian ferry pilot who shuttles twin-engined, American-made Hudson bombers from Canada to England. Just now, on the troop transport "Julep," Dave is making his sixth return crossing, after delivering a bomber to Britain. Middle-aged, with a spray of gray at his temples, broad-beamed with a foot ball body, Dave is coming back over the hazardous convoy route to pick up another bomber and buzz back to some RAF drome, a risky round in which the Dark Angel hovers near and the penalty for one mistake is oblivion.

Most of the other ferry-pilots—there are 20-odd on this transport—are Americans who hail from every whither in the U. S. A. and have been lured by adventure and high pay. They average $800 a month, and are usually broke.

YOU DIE OR YOU DON'T

According to their carefree philosophies, life is a stimulating elixir to be drained in lusty gulps, a you-die-or-you-don't sort of fatalism. They hold roisterous fun-sessions in the officers' tap; yet, under their frisky crust, they are sincere and competent, too, delivering their bombers on schedule and keeping 11-hour transatlantic vigils at the controls.

On some tomorrow, they will climb into their flying woollens, receive route orders in sealed envelopes, mount a big, dull-painted boomer and roar over the ocean, watching the morning lights turn to afternoon gold, to evening dusk and velvet black. Some night-time soon they will fly over England, call their landing drome by short-wave code and settle down on a flare-light field. There will be no laughter then, just grim squint-eyed anxiety—a nerve-light concentration.

But this, on shipboard, is a blissful interlude, an interval of forgetfulness. Let tomorrow take care of its worries.

DAVE'S LITTLE BOOK

Not Dave. The limit of his self-indulgence is an occasional thimble of sherry. Between times he takes long conditioning strolls along the decks. And always, whether on promenade, in the social talk-jags of the tap, in the cloister of the ship's library or during mesa, he carries a text on astronomical navigation, a fat little volume copiously jotted with marginal pencil notes. Flying has been his obsession since boyhood.

Before this is published Dave will be far over the Atlantic, high in the sky and keeping incessant watch for RAF patrols which fly 600 miles out to sea and watch for enemy raiders. Dave and his copilot will be holding a flash signal lamp ready for any patrol plane's challenge, quick to flicker the correct code word in the color designated for the moment. He and his mate will have 40 seconds to reply. Sleepiness, carelessness or failure to blink the right answer might mean a quick flash of machine gun burst and death in the sea. For the ferry-pilots wear no parachutes, and carry no life-saving device other than a gas-inflated rubber raft.

NEW WAY TO GET HOME

Or Dave, having landed his ship, may now be waiting return passage on another convoy, perhaps one of those 5000-ton freighters which churn sluggishly and apprehensively back to Rialto. It takes 10 hours to fly over, 1 to 21 days to come back. The last half of the program, these ferry pilots admit, is hideous and they are waiting eagerly for the completion of four giant transport planes, now nearly ready in a British factory, to carry them home, 32 at a time—a round trip every 10 days.

One of the American transport pilots is a slight, chestnut haired, bland-eyed man of early 40, who wears an angular scar on his left cheek. Though mild-mannered, he is subject to sudden, alcoholic explosions, a long, lip-chewing, sombre mood. With shrewd tact and past painful experience, his mates never "rib" him.

Today I found him in a reminiscent mood, musing something in a frosted glass in a corner of the red morocco lounge, and relating in his soft, semi-lisp, experiences as a bomber-pilot in Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese squadron.

"CRATES" OVER CHINA

He had flown archaic, American and German-made "crates" for nearly a year, coaxing the unwieldy contraptions over Japanese lines around Shanghai and dropping Chinese bombs, with a high percentage of dud, on military centers behind the Jap lines.

"Every raid was a tremendous adventure," he said. "W never had military maps of the region, and had to fly by anything from automobile road charts, to pages cut out of school geographies. And you never knew when your motors would give a tubercular cough and spitter out." Once he had made a forced landing miles inside Japanese territory, left his plane in flat, mud-baked level near the Yangtze river, and hid in the river reeds till night. He had wandered by the stars and a hand compass till early morning, when he bumped into a band of Chinese guerrillas, who conducted him to their one-eyed, villainous looking chief in a hill hide-out. Hopefully, he had kept repeating from his little stock of Chinese, that he was an American pilot attached to Meme, Chiang Kai-shek air force.

"I'll never forget being pushed into that foul-smelling, dimly lighted cave," he said. "We must have walked miles through subterranean passages until we came to a large, rafted room where a gang of Chinese in peasant rags, hand-dollers of cartridges and every imaginable kind of arms or weapons, were sitting at a table. I felt goose-pimples big as pennies on my skin, and I remember hoping they'd do the job quick, and not cut off my toes and ears one at a time."

CUT-THROATS, BUT NICE

The guerrilla chief, he said, was surprisingly crude, for such a filthy, murderous looking character, and had learned some English at a Methodist mission. He and an assistant looked over the pilot's papers and passport, asked laboriously, particularly about the location of his damaged plane, and gave him a bowl of gritty rice. "The most savage bunch of cut-throats I ever looked at," said the pilot, "and yet they became suddenly courteous. I was their guest, said the chief, leering with his good, very bright eye. I would be conducted to my aerodrome. And I was..."

The next night he was hidden under some fagots in an ox cart, and trundled endless, tortuous miles over rutted roads, being bruised painfully at every lurch of the cart and never knowing at what moment a Japanese patrol would thrust investigating bayonets through the fagots. Daytimes the coolie driver hid him in friendly farm huts, where he got a meager mouthful and a wink of sleep. Five nights later he arrived at his drome where his mixed French and Russian mates had, philosophically, divided up his belongings and applied for his remaining pay.

THEN THEY FIRED HIM

At length he was courteously, but firmly, notified that he was discharged—no reason... "Just," said a bland, moon-faced official, "that we are not bombing anymore..." It was an Oriental lie, he knew, but gladly he changed to civvies, accepted false papers, and went to a hole-in-the-wall pay-off office in Shanghai, where he was given his back salary and a ticket for San Francisco, via Yokohama.

For five days, while waiting ship, he toured the Japanese city, living hilariously with other American floatam and never an instance of interference from Jap police.

It was a weird and salty tale he told, in which he always had a Madrier automatic tucked under his waistband. He never had to use it, and here he was, a slight-bodied, mild, lip-tongued soldier of fortune with a wide-baby stare and the pink shaven cheeks of a 40-year-old adolescent, save where a white, angular scar crosses his left cheek. I did not ask him how he got it. He did not say.

Austen Lake will tell of more war experiences in Britain in the Boston Evening American tomorrow.

Liberalized Old-Age Aid Wins O.K. of House Group

A three-point program to liberalize old age assistance laws has received the approval of a majority of the legislative committee on pensions, it was revealed today, with the report that a bill embodying these changes is now in the drafting stage.

Subject to finding money to foot the bill, these changes include:

- Increasing the minimum monthly payments from $30 to $40 for single persons, and $45 as a minimum for married couples.
- Adoption of a graduated scale of exemptions for married persons in the lower income group in the support-of-parents law.
- Dropping of a batch of bills to lower the eligibility age requirement from 65 to 60 years.

Governor Saltonstall has indicated that he will veto any bill changing the statute which adds to the cost unless accompanied by a revenue provision. To solve the problem of finding upwards of $5,000,000 in new revenue to finance the changes, the committee is said to have under consideration three measures: A "luxury" sales tax, sponsored by Tax Comm. Long; a change raising the state income tax and lowering exemptions to the federal level; and a combination of an amusement tax, sales taxes on cigars and pipe tobacco, a levy on bones and a rise in the state's take on trace bone and dog tracks. About a month ago the Legislature checked a revenue measure in the nature of a state lottery which the voters in 30 of the 40 senatorial districts had instructed their representatives to approve.

JACK CONWAY

State to Open War On Bootleg Betting

PRESIDENT CHARLES F. ADAMS of Suffolk Downs took time out between races to tell me that the bookmaker will be as great a menace as the liquor racketeer was during prohibition days if the States having legalized racing do not call a halt to increasing the mutual take and taxes.

CHARLES F. ADAMS

"Florida has just passed legislation increasing the take to 15 per cent where it was formerly only 10 per cent," said Adams. "The additional five per cent that is taken out of the money wagered on each race goes into the State's treasury. It comes from the pockets of the persons who have been supporting racing in which the State of Florida is a partner with the tracks in that State."

"Fifteen per cent is too much for anyone to take at a horse track. Nobody can win playing against such a big percentage. The big better, of course, won't try to beat this percentage. He will wager his money with a bookmaker at an agreed price."

"I do not believe the various States should do anything to hurt the tracks with whom they are in business and to help the bookmakers who frequently have worked against the best interests of racing. In the jockey scandal in California, it was an unscrupulous group of bookmakers who pulled the strings that caused the jockeys to do wrong."

"Even under present conditions big bookmakers are in serious competition with Suffolk Downs and other race tracks. These bookmakers pay no license fees and very little, if any, taxes, employ only a limited number of runners and yet reach out and take business that legitimately belongs to the tracks and to the States."

"Many big bettors think the ten per cent that comes out of each race—3-1-3 per cent for the State and 6½ per cent for the association—is too much to go against. What will they think of the new 15 per cent take that is being rigged up for them in Florida and in some other places? Of course they will not be foolish enough to try to beat it. They will play the illegal bookmakers, some of whom will use their earnings in an effort to corrupt racing rather than to help it."

Track Only Gets One-Sixth of Profits
THIS IS THE seventh year of racing at Suffolk Downs, Adams pointed out, and the bonded debt of the track is still $230,000. The East Boston racing plant cost $2,500,000 and it will take almost seven years of racing to pay off this indebtedness. According to official figures the profit at Suffolk Downs last season was $242,965 against $261,610 for the previous year.

"In round numbers," went on Adams, "the track can make $1,750,000 in a year and only end up with $250,000. This is due to the fact $1,500,000 is paid to the State, Federal government, City of Boston and City of Revere in various kinds of taxes. This gives us one-sixth of the total amount that would be earned if we did not have to concern ourselves with taxes. I believe these figures show better than anything else that under present conditions there is not as big money in running a race track as some people believe."

"At Suffolk Downs we have been trying to build up cash reserves so that if the United States should enter the war we can still conduct racing even though it may be at a loss."

There is another side to owning race tracks and to that of Suffolk Downs, Rockingham Park, Narragansett Park and the rich Florida and New York tracks.

There was little Agawam outside of Springfield which was built at a cost of $1,400,000. The overhead was too much, and the track was reorganized on a basis by which the bond holders took new bonds at the rate of 50 cents on $1. The track then earned around $100,000 a year for two seasons.

Just when it looked as if the bond holders and the stockholders were going to see daylight, the voters halted racing in Hampden County. Agawam Park has been closed tight going into its third year. Meenville taxes and a normal overhead gets on.

There is also the story of Epsom Downs in Texas which was built at a cost of $750,000 by a group of Boston men. The track was earning money when Texas voted racing out. A race track is not worth any more than the license on the wall. It is like any business that must go to a State board with hat in hand asking for a license. The changing of the political winds often ruin a prosperous race track.

State to War on Bookmakers

THE RAIDS ON bookmaking establishments in Lawrence were only the first of a series of operations planned by the State police against bookmakers and operators of horse rooms. State officials have been checking up on bookmaking establishments in all parts of the State. Inspectors representing the Massachusetts State Racing Commission have been used in the war on bookmakers at Suffolk Downs.

Downtown Boston has come under the State survey, and it is possible drastic action may be taken in certain spots. Sidewalk bookmakers have been among those watched by the State officials who have been conducting the State-wide probe.

Th State has apparently decided that inasmuch as it has a healthy ally of the legalized horse and dog business that it should not permit any bootleg betting.

M'SPADEN HAS SUB-PAR 70 IN 'BIG EIGHT' GOLF TEST

EASTON EVENING AMERICAN, WED., MAY 14, 1941

THE COUNTRY CLUB, Brookline, May 14 (INS)—Harold "Jug" McSpaden, Winchester Country Club pro, this afternoon took a one-stroke lead at the half-way mark of the 36-hole medal "Big Eight" golf tournament when he toured the Clyde Park course in a steady 35-35—70, one under par.

Before a gallery that grew to nearly 6000 to swell the coffers for the British war relief, McSpaden shot birdies on the first and eleventh greens.

Byron Nelson, Toledo, A., and Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., latter leading money winner of the winter circuits, were tied for second place at the end of 18 holes with a par 71. Nelson and Hogan both carded 36-35.

Other scores:

Lawson Little, San Francisco, 36-36—72.

Jimmy Demaret, Noroton, Ct., 37-36—73.

Craig Wood, Mamaroneck, N. Y., 36-36—74.

Sam Snead, Hot Spring, Vt., 37-36—75.

Jimmy Thomson, Chicopee, Mass., 39-40—79.

The heavy, rolling greens were the cause of the high scores, with virtually each competitor two and three-putting most greens. Little twice missed putts under three feet. Had those dropped he would have tied McSpaden for the lead.

JUG CANS 20-FOOTER

McSpaden got off to a flying start by holing a 20-footer for a birdie and then just missed canning a three-yarder on the next green. For the next two holes, Jug played perfect golf, but at the fifth he failed to get a four-foot putt for a "birdie" but came up with his par.

At the short seventh, he made a fine bid for another birdie, but the ball refused to drop. After getting his four at the eighth, "Jug" went over par for the first time at the ninth, where he failed to get home with his second. He chipped about 12 feet past the pin, taking a five, to be out in 35, even par.

Nelson, who played with McSpaden, went to the turn in 36, one over, despite bogeys at the first and ninth. Byron didn't get home on the first but he pitched on, and his putt for a par stopped on the lip of the cup.

Nelson parred the next five holes and at the seventh holed a 12-footer for a deuce, only to miss a six-footer on the eighth green. At the ninth McSpaden chipped to within four feet of the cup, but didn't get the putt and he was out in 36, one over.

NELSON GOOD, TOO

After getting a par at the 10th, McSpaden was just afoot of the 11th green in two. He chipped two feet from the cup and holed the putt for a "birdie." He went through the next four holes playing perfect golf. At the 16th, where he was trapped off the tee, he came out and dropped a 7-foot putt for his par, finishing with two regular pars for a 35 for the back nine. This is one under par figures.

Nelson started back with two pars and then he picked up a stroke by dropping a transcontinental putt for a deuce at the 12th. From that point he parred every hole for a 35 and a 71. The cards:

McSpaden—
Out 3 4 4 4 4 3 4 4 35
In 4 4 3 4 5 4 4 4 35—70

Two Twt Games

Hurley Club Dark Horse

Two Games will make up the schedule of the Boston Park League tonight as the remainder of the circuit pondered on the possibilities of the clubs shown in the first two nights of play.

The only games pitted the Helenees of Roxbury and the Navy Yard A. A. at Barry Park, Charlestown, and the Linnehan Club against Carter's Closest at Lee Playground, South Boston.

With two victories under their belts, the Dick Casey Club batters look like a serious threat to go a far way before being dethroned. In its two games, the Casey Club has hung up a pair of victories, both over the Artesian of Brighton, and the second with comparative ease.

The new Hurley Club appears to be a sleeper. Stopping up from a minor Park Department league, the Roxbury club has registered a pair of triumphs and may be considered the dark horse of the pennant race at this early date.

Famous Dizzy Dean To Quit Baseball

Dizzy said he might, but "it'll only be somewhere in the Cubs organization; I wouldn't go with anyone else. This ball club has been too good to me."

BEST YEAR IN 1934

Dean's greatest year was 1934, when he won 30 games while losing only seven—climaxing that brilliant performance by pitching and winning three times on alternate days in the last week of the season when the St. Louis Cardinals had to win every game to stay in the race.

Many observers said that terrific loss weakened his arm so much that it never did fully recover. When the Cardinals did qualify to meet Detroit in the World Series, Dean went on to win two games, turning in a magnificent performance with the Tigers in the final contest.

Always in "hot water" over violations of training rules, Dean went on strike in 1934 when he refused to accompany the Cardinals to Detroit for an exhibition game. That argument wasn't settled until Commissioner K. M. Landis took a hand.

The following year, lured by poor support, he tangled with his mother—almost coming to blows with her. Every spring he had vicious salary arguments with Sam Elsdon and Branch Rickey of the St. Louis club.

He once staged a "sit down" strike on the mound to defy the umpires and was suspended by Frick after a speech in which Dean was alleged to have doubted the integrity of a National League umpire.

Gallagher said he and Manager Wilson would have a conference with Dean, probably tomorrow, to decide the future of the once great pitching star. Dean may be retained in the Cubs organization in some capacity.

FIND SPOT FOR DIZ

"This much is definite—Dean is finished with us as a player," Gallagher said.

"I am not prepared to say now whether Dean will fit into the Cub organization in some other capacity. We'll decide that when Wilson and I sit down with Dean and talk things over, probably tomorrow. I have too many other things to do today."

Dean, 30 years old last January, was truly one of the game's greatest performers while with the St. Louis Cardinals through 1937, but he has been almost worthless since the Cubs acquired him for $185,000 and three players. He has won a total of 16 games in three seasons with the Cubs; in six years with the Cards he averaged 22 victories per season!

When hired as Cub manager,

Wilson said he wanted to keep Dean on the staff. Maybe he will, but the lean Arkansas showman has shown no tendency to regain anything resembling his old-time form. He started one game this season—against the Pirates, April 25—and barely lasted one inning, yielding three hits and three runs. Wilson, despite his realistic attitude toward baseball problems, has a tremendous sentimental attachment for the loquacious hurler whose personality dominated baseball in the middle '30's.

ARM FAILED IN '37

Wilson was the seasoned veteran, then star catcher of the Cardinals, who took the green rookie in hand and showed him the big league ropes in 1932. Under the old campaigner's watchful eye Dean spied through the opposition for 18 victories his first full year in the league. As a savvy buckling, spectacular sophomore, he won 20 games and went on to roll up 133 victories in six years with the club.

That was when he had it, when he worked in 45 or more games for five straight years. By 1937 he had a sore arm, an ailment that failed to respond to treatment. The Cards sent him to the Cubs the next year. Always an earnest battler, Dean has worked hard to regain his old wizardry, but he has had only his control and slow curves to offer.

Army Gets Muzz Patrick Of Rangers

VICTORIA, May 14 (AP)—Murray (Muzz) Patrick, defense man of the New York Rangers, will be lost to his team in the next National Hockey League season, he said today, because he will be inducted into the United States Army in June for a year's training.

Young Patrick, son of Ranger Manager Lester Patrick and first Canadian in the N. H. L. to be affected by the U. S. Army draft, said he expected to be sent to Camp Dix, N. J., for preliminary training. Only other N. H. L. player inducted by the draft to date is Sam Lo Presti, American-born goalie with the Chicago Blackhawks, Muzz said.

All But Jones

14 Champs In Open

NEW YORK, May 14 (AP)—All the national open golf champions of the past 15 years, with the exception of Bobby Jones, will be in there shooting for the 1941 title June 5-7 at Fort Worth, Texas.

A new ruling by the United States Golf Ass'n this year offered exemption from the sectional qualifying rounds of all ex-champions who weren't already exempt because they had finished among the low 30 and ties in the previous year's open.

Seven of them sent in their entries and seven others, including the 1940 winners, Lawson Little, were in the top group last year.

The 14 players took all the open titles for 15 years back—except the three Jones won—as well as in 1903, 1914, 1916, 1919 and 1922. Fred McLeod won the 1903 title. Walter Hagen was the 1914 and 1919 winner, and Chick Evans the 1916 champion. Gene Sarazen, victor in 1922 and 1932, was among the leading 30 last year.

Others benefited by the new rule were Billie Burke, 1931; Johnny Goodman, 1933; Olin Dutro, 1934; land Tony Monera, 1936. Already exempt were Tommy Armour, 1927; Johnny Farrell, 1928; Sam Parks, 1930; Ralph Guldahl, 1937 and '38, and Byron Nelson, 1939.

In announcing that approximately 1940 entries had been received when the lists closed yesterday, United States Golf Ass'n officials revealed that only Ed Oliver had taken advantage of their recent offer to soldier-golfers to avoid playing through the 36-hole sectional qualifying tests May 26.

It was open to any player in the armed forces who had qualified for the final day's play in the 1939 or 1940 opens. Oliver still hasn't received the required permission from his commanding officer, but as he already has been granted four days' leave to play in the Goodall Round-robin tournament, no difficulty is anticipated on that score.

CROWN LEADS BATTING RACE

Joe Cronin, Red Sox manager, took the lead in the baseball big six with a batting average of .412, when he hit two singles in four trips against the White Sox yesterday.

Cecil Travis, Senators, dropped to second place, one point behind the Sox shortstop.

Pitchers on Spot

Winchester Boy Clicks

CHICAGO, May 14—Putting his finger on faulty pitching as the basic reason for the Braves' inconsistency, Manager Casey Stengel announced in no uncertain terms this morning that he is going to give his younger members their chance very shortly unless the veterans start producing.

Outside of Bill Posedel who has gone the route in his only two starts of the year and won them both, the other veterans have not been up to standard. Dick Erickson has already been dropped as one of the big four and either Jim Tobin or Manny Salvo may follow.

Tobin was chased in the second inning yesterday before he could get anybody out in that frame. He gave the Cubs a three-run lead which eventually led to their 4 to 3 triumph.

Salvo has looked good in spots but has not been up to last year's standard. He seems unable to bear down all the way and in almost every start he has come up with a bad inning.

JOHNSON MAY BE STARTER
If Salvo falls down badly, Winchester's Art Johnson, a brilliant rookie left hander, is going to step into a starting job.

Johnson was great yesterday as he has been every time he has been called upon for relief duty. Rushed in after Tobin had put two men on the bases with nobody out in the second, Johnson retired the side without a run. He retired the side in order in the third and was found for a lone single in the fourth.

That concluded his day as he retired for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

It was too bad Tobin couldn't have been as effective.

WINS ON A WALK
In the very first inning Hack doubled, Cavaretta singled and Hank Lieber followed them around the bases with a home run over the left field wall.

When the first two men hit in the second, out went Tobin in favor of Art Johnson, who quickly quelled the uprising.

CHICAGO, May 14—Rain postponed the final games of the Boston-Braves-Chicago Cubs series here today, and the Boston club moved on immediately to St. Louis, where they open with the Cardinals tomorrow.

DYKES NURSES PENNANT DREAMS

SAFE OR OUT?—The umpire called Billy Knickerbocker of the White Sox out at first base on this play, but wouldn't you say Jimmy Fox's foot is off the bag? There was nobody out at the time and Appling followed with a single. There was no beef, however, so probably Fox is moving his foot away after making the catch.

By JOHN GILLOOLY

He will not say so out loud—and this may be the only subject on which he is not loud, at that—but Jimmy Dykes is harboring a hunch that his second-place White Sox can win the A. L. pennant and thus atone the oft-astounded experts.

Dykes steadfastly refuses to mention his group of bargain-basement athletes in the same breath yet makes pointed observations about the other entries in the chase.

The Indians, he feels, will somersault as it's their habit. Rizzuto and Priddy can't furnish what the Yanks require.

The Red Sox have power, but not the pitching.

The others are snubbed by the cigar-gobbling chief of the Chisox. He regards them as sub-par and hardly worth comment. This aloof attitude is assumed towards the champion Tigers, too, now that Hank Greenberg has marched off to Camp Custer with a squad of selectees. No one, he is certain, will fill Greenberg's size 12 spikes.

So the White Sox, with nothing much in their way, will go on to win the pennant.

"I didn't say that," breaks in Dykes rapidly. "Why I said nothing of the sort."

As a matter of fact, he didn't. But he displayed a strong lack of respect for other clubs in the circuit and a deep affection for his White Sox roster, which he considers the best he's had in eight seasons at the helm.

CRONIN TOPS BIG SIX
Dykes is especially proud of Johnny Rigney, the 26-year-old right-hander who limited the Red Sox to four hits yesterday to assure the invaders at least a split in this series which concludes today at Fenway with Bill Dietrich and Emerson Dickman scheduled to throw.

Two of the four clouts off Rigney were home runs, one to left by Jimmy Fox and the other to right by Toddy Williams. Joe Cronin chipped in with a pair of whistling singles to bring the total to a meagre four and to hoist his own batting average to .412. The Fenway foreman is now ruler of the Big Six which

SOX SEND HASH TO LOUISVILLE

The Red Sox today released pitcher Herb Hash to the Louisville club of the American Assn., thus bringing the squad down to the player limit of 25.

Hash, a six-foot right-hander, won 22 games for Minneapolis two years ago and came to the Sox with a heavy price tag on him.

He was a standout during May and June last season, winning seven games up to June 26, the failing to win another all season. This year he has been used only twice in relief roles. In the third game of the season he relieved Lefty Grove in Philadelphia and got credit for the victory.

38 My Topper Runs Fastest Trial At Raynham

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, WED., MAY 14, 1941

For the second night of schooling in preparation for the opening on Friday night, May 23, of Raynham Park's second year of greyhound racing, 11 races have been arranged for tonight.

The first race will be run off at 8 o'clock, with the others following in rapid succession.

Last night 20 races were run off and surprisingly good times were recorded despite the fact all the greyhounds had been idle since April 10.

Bud Carroll's newest star, My Topper, had the distinction of registering the fastest time of the night, a heat in 29.2, where, among others, he headed that good representative of Mrs. Marie C. Sparks, Daily Record, to the wire.

General Manager Russell Murray was pleasantly surprised at the gathering which attended the first trial session. At one time during the night there were more than 1900 people either in the stands or on the lawn.

Pro Tennis Aces In Series Here

Organized tennis will do its bit for the British Relief Fund. It was made known by Longwood officials, who announced that six of the top notch net stars will compete in behalf of beleaguered Britain on June 11 at the Longwood courts.

Those who will take part in the tourney will be Alice Marble, Mary Hardwick, Bill Tilden, Don Budge, Fred Perry, and Vin Richards. Men's and women's singles and men's and mixed doubles will be the classes contested.

Pitcher Barnicle Optioned to Hartford

Announcement that George Barnicle, right-handed pitcher of the Boston Braves, was being sent to the Hartford club in the Eastern League was made by the Boston National League club today.

Barnicle, who has been in the Braves' farm system for four years and has been up with the Boston club for portions of four seasons, won four games and lost one while playing with Syracuse last year. He has done very little work for the Braves during the current year.

Bill Smith Adds To Record List

HONOLULU, May 14 (AP)—Bill Smith, Honolulu's sensational 16-year-old, has added a 4:35.5 time for 440 yards to his growing list of record-breaking marks in the longer distance free-style swims.

His performance last night in regulation 25-yard long pool was more than two seconds under the accepted world record of 4:08.8 set in Honolulu Aug. 30, 1934, by Hack Medina of Seattle.

ZALE, HOSTAK SIGN

CHICAGO, May 14 (INS)—After four months of negotiation, the papers finally have been signed for a 15-round title bout in Chicago May 28 between Tony Zale and Al Hostak.

Atherton Suggests Rule Change

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14 (AP)—

Edwin N. Atherton, whose strict enforcement of Pacific Coast Conference rules banned 35 freshman and high school athletes from competition at certain conference schools, believes the rules are too harsh.

Atherton, conference commissioner and a former FBI agent, last week designated 22 freshmen and 13 high school boys as ineligible to participate in athletics at five coast schools. He charged alumni were overzealous in bringing about or seeking their enrollment.

"The rules are pretty stringent," Atherton said today. "We cannot close all avenues of information to prospective enrollees just because they happen to be athletes."

"Our present rules cause penalties to be inflicted for activities permissible in other conferences which otherwise are supposed to be models of perfection."

He did not specify just what rule changes he favored.

Dartmouth Nine Plays Harvard

Dartmouth's red hot baseball team will meet Harvard this afternoon with George Sexton of Watertown on the mound in an attempt to snatch the Ivy League lead from Cornell. The game is scheduled for 4 o'clock.

With sensational pitching from Sexton and sophomore Will Gray, the Big Green hurtled from last to second place in the league standing last week and appears the team to beat for the title won by Cornell last year.

The Harvard nine is deadlocked for third place with Penn and Princeton after a slow start. Coach Floyd Stahl's team has begun to hit and if the pitching continues to hold up the Cantabs may upset the dogs of the league.

TALUN CHOICE OVER FILIPINO IN ARENA BOUT

Wladyslaw Talun, one of the tallest of the heavyweight professional athletes in sports today, rules a slight favorite to down Panaleon Manlapig when they clash in the main event of Promoter Paul Bowser's all-star tournament tonight at the Boston Arena.

Talun soars 6 feet 8 inches and scales 302 pounds to Manlapig's 5 feet 8 inches and 250 pounds. But don't let the figures fool you. Manlapig has what is called the ideal build for a wrestler and somehow or other the boys figure out that his build gives him an even break with a much bigger man.

MAIN BOUT
Wladyslaw Talun, Poland vs. Panaleon Manlapig, Philippines.
SEMI-FINAL
Lou Plummer, Iowa Thunderbolt vs. Marvin Westenberg, Tacoma.
SPECIAL BOUT
George Macriostas, Greece vs. Tom Casey, Ireland.
PRELIMINARIES
Corbory Govey, Wyoming vs. Lord Albert Mills, England.
Bibber McCoy, Cambridge vs. Peto Baltan, Lithuania.

Yale, Brown Aces Duel for Net Title

AMHERST, May 14 (AP)—Top-seeded Bob Freedman of Yale, runner-up in last year's title battle, faced John Benj. of Brown today in the final singles match of the New England intercollegiate tennis championship.

In the doubles final the Amherst tandem of Wily Lamar and Tom Rodman had the task of conquering Sonny Lyell and Orme Wilson, Harvard pair, to achieve their hope of bringing a championship to the tournament's host college.

Freedman reached the championship bracket after a struggle with surprising Don Gray of Amherst, who surrendered finally 6-3, 7-5. The Eli finalist made short work of team mate Grant Wilmer, 6-3, 6-2, in the quarter finals.

Benj. had a harder row to hoe, being extended by Wily Lamar in the semi-final, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2, after he tallied from a first set loss to defeat Chuck Spaulding of Yale, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2, in the quarter-final.

means he is baseball's leading larper and would indicate that he's enjoying the fastest start of his career.

Cecil Travis of the Senators, leading the parade all spring, went 0 for 3 yesterday and dropped to .411.

Mr. Whiskers may shortly remove the Rigney headache for the Sox and the Travis contention for Cronin. Both the Chisox flinger and the Solons' slugger are feeling a draft. They are in Class 1-A and subject to bugle call although both may remain out of the khaki ranks until August.

"That would be a wallop," moaned Dykes who may change his mind about things-to-come in the flag pursuit should Rigney be beckoned by his board. Rigney chalked 15 wins in 1939 and 1940 and Dykes figures he's ready to step up and claim a position as one of the major league's foremost flingers.

His progress was slowed this campaign by an attack of flu in the training camp at Pasadena and a subsequent throat infection. Rigney's first start was against the Sox on their recent road trip. He lost an 11-inning duel with Charlie Wagner when Williams hit a homer.

TOUGH ONE FOR WAGNER

He squared this matter with the Cronin corps and with Wagner yesterday, producing the best pitching performance the Hub has seen this season. He had a two-bitter until the ninth when Williams asked a pitch into the far corner, just inside the yellow foul-line pole in right, with one out, and Cronin singled.

Rigney thereupon whiffed Bobby Doerr and snuffed out the hope of a typical Boston final-inning flurry. Wagner was only a stride behind, allowing but six hits in eight frames. A pair of walks—to Rigney and Williams—ended the game.

Feller Still Learning

By the Associated Press

Bob Feller came to the Cleveland Indians six years ago labelled a marvel. He was 16 years old and fresh off a farm at Van Meter, Ia.

Instead of undergoing a seasoning process in the minors like, say, Lefty Grove, who spent five seasons at Baltimore, Feller's first step in organized baseball was in the big arena of the American League.

Because of this it took a little time for this big, earnest boy to absorb the polish expected of a major league pitcher. He had an amazing fast ball, a minimum of control and only a vague idea that games could be won with less than a dozen or 15 strikeouts.

He still is learning, but there no longer is the faintest doubt that he is the best pitcher in the major leagues. The only question is what ultimate good he will reach—whether some day he may be considered the greatest of all time.

BOUDREAU HOMERS

He led the Indians yesterday to a 2-1 10-inning decision over the New York Yankees. It was his sixth victory against two runs in this year and evened his all-time record against the Yanks at 11 won and the same number lost.

Feller allowed just six hits and fanned nine. Five of his first six strikeout victims were called out on curve balls, which Bob couldn't throw when he came to Cleveland but now can break with the best in his league. He also showed great courage in getting out of jams.

The Indians scored off Marquis Russo in the second inning, but an unearned run by the Yanks in the sixth tied the score. Feller just clamped down then, and Russo hit a homer in the tenth to win.

The Chicago White Sox nosed out the Boston Red Sox, 3-2, and took over second place behind the Indians.

The Washington Senators squeaked past the Detroit Tigers, 4-3, by rallying for all their runs in the fifth and sixth innings, knocking Buck Newsome out of the box on the way. Young Sid Hudson allowed only three hits, but walks and errors helped Detroit take a four-run lead in the first three frames.

The Philadelphia Athletics handed over a 1-0 victory to the St. Louis Browns behind the seventh-inning hurling of Jack Knott.

BUCCS END SLUMP

In the National League the speeding Brooklyn Dodgers cut down the Cincinnati Reds, 4-3, for their sixth straight victory. Chunksy Hugh Casey limited the weak-hitting world champions to six hits in achieving his fifth win without defeat. The Dodgers got just eight off Bucky Walters.

This defeat, sixth in eight games, dropped the Reds into the second division as the rejuvenated Chicago Cubs bumped off the Boston Braves, 4-3, to take fourth place. The St. Louis Cardinals punched out a 3-2 triumph over the third-place New York Giants for Mort Cooper's fourth victory.

After Hub had been removed for a pinch-hitter in a rally that tied the score in the eighth, Walter (Jumbo) Brown was needed for the winning run in the ninth on an error, a sacrifice and a single by Jimmy Brown.

The Pittsburgh Pirates broke their losing streak in a 6-3 game with the Phillies. Each team made 10 hits and four errors.

BMI Slashes Music Rates In Price War on ASCAP

ST. LOUIS, May 14 (AP)—The radio music war, subject of much controversy since the first of the year, was broadened today with an announcement by Broadcast Music, Inc., of a 33 1-3 per cent slash in fees in its battle for business with ASCAP.

The cut was disclosed in a report to the National Association of Broadcasters convention by Sydney M. Kaye, executive vice-president and general counsel of BMI.

In effect it means that BMI station subscribers will receive a rebate of this amount in contracts already signed for the year ending April 1, 1942.

"Reductions of 33 1-3 per cent," Kaye explained, "will mean that our rates will compare favorably with rates of 33 1-3 per cent and range up to 1-3 per cent of gross receipts, dependent upon station revenue."

"BMI can do its full job for the coming year at approximately $1,400,000, a rebate to the broadcasting industry of approximately $600,000."

The Mutual Broadcasting System announced Sunday an agreement with ASCAP providing payment of 3 per cent of gross revenue for one year and 5 1/2 per cent thereafter until Jan. 1, 1950.

ney and Kubel—and a pair of singles—by Appling and Wright—were clustered in the third for two Chicago runs. Rigney, a hitting pitcher, doubled in the seventh and scored on a horse-shoe two-bagger by Knickerbocker for the winning run in the 3-2 struggle.

Stan Spence started in for Knickerbocker's lift which was tossed about by the east wind. Then he turned and ran back, when he saw the ball was going to carry over his head, and fell. The ball dropped safely five yards away. By the time Spence regained his feet and found the agile, Knickerbocker was on second and Rigney home with the deciding tally.

Brae-Burn Caddies On Strike

The caddies at Brae Burn Country Club are on strike.

Some 139 bag toters laid down their link tools today when their demands for more money were refused by club officials.

They have been receiving $1 a round for singles and $1.50 for doubles. The boys are demanding $1.25 for singles and $2 for doubles.

Early morning golfers were forced to tote their own bags and will continue to do so, according to the boys, until their new price scale is met.

Doak Solves Problem

RALEIGH, N. C., May 14 (AP)—You won't see Chick Doak, North Carolina State College catcher, chasing his cap after he has chased a foul fly. He has a cloth tape with one end fastened to the back of his shirt and the other snapped to the bill of his turned-around cap.
